ENGAGEMENT

BLOOM—RAMPLIN.—The engagement is announced of GEORGE CROMARTY, only son of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Bloom of Tsingtao, to PATRICIA SUSAN, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Ramplin of Shanghai. 13146

DEATHS

HASICK.—On June 7, 1940, at the Paulun Hospital, Shanghai, JENNY, aged 26 years, dearly loved wife of Isaac Hasick. Funeral services were held yesterday, Friday, June 7, at 5.30 p.m., at the Baikal Road Cemetery. —9909

HEMSWORTH.—On Friday, June 7, 1940, at the Country Hospital, Shanghai, ELVIRA ELLIS JOSEPHINE HEMSWORTH, aged 40 years, the beloved wife of Mr. C. J. Hemsworth. Visitors will be received at the Parlours of the International Funeral Directors, 207 Kiaochow Road, tomorrow, Sunday, June 9, from 4 to 6 p.m. A Requiem Mass will be held at the Church of Christ The King, 235 Rue Bourgeat, on Monday at 10 a.m. Interment will take place at the Holy Cross Cemetery, San Francisco, California, and instead of flowers, donations to charity would be appreciated.

CARDS

Mrs. S. KRIVOROOCHKO and FAMILY and Mr. V. M. KRIVOROOCHKO gratefully acknowledge and thank their many friends for the kind expressions of sympathy and for the beautiful flowers sent during their recent bereavement. —9788

Mrs. SUE TAKEDA, sister, and Mrs. P. W. ULDALL, niece, of the late Mr. and Mrs. Chegwidden, wish to thank their many friends and in particular officers of the River Police, for their kind expressions of sympathy and beautiful floral tributes received in their recent sad bereavement. —9919

A Donation to Charity is a very fitting In Memoriam token of love and respect and will bring real help to distressed persons. Instead of sending wreaths and flowers, send a donation to your National Society: they need your help. 13070

MERCURY

Welcome economy of operation—unexpected in such a big luxurious car—accounts for much of the extraordinary success of the Mercury 8.

Add to this its extra roominess—the quiet comfort of the Mercury Ride—the high power-to-weight ratio of its 95 H.P. V-type engine—and you'll understand why drivers are enthusiastic about this car.

Reproduction in Colours

Colour in its proper tones and values has extraordinary properties. It can make food appetising, automobiles luxurious, furniture inviting and comfortable, and people lifelike. Colour has these powers, but needs skill in the development of them. Let the North-China Daily News Printing Department handle your colour work if you are seeking satisfaction.

War Service:
Married Man's Dilemma

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—In your today's issue I read that local Britons may now register for service with H.M. Forces in France. I also believe that a fund has been started to finance the return home of the contingent.

I am a married man, with two children, and we are totally dependent on my job for our support. I am not in a financial position to take my family home and I am certainly not going to leave my family here without any means of support, nor am I inclined to take my family back to England when their evacuation elsewhere may be considered necessary.

I am prepared to serve my country as other members of my family did in 1914, but do not know where my path lies. I was in England at the outbreak of the war and then volunteered my services in any capacity, but was advised that I could best serve my country by returning to Shanghai and "carrying on." Having now returned, it appears the general opinion that I should have remained in England until wanted.

Could any reader enlighten me as to the position of my family should I proceed home to fight and will those responsible for the advice given to me when in England inform me whether I can "best serve imperial interests by remaining at my post in Shanghai." I want to do my best for my country and for my wife and family, but who can tell me what is best to do?

BEWILDERED

Shanghai, June 7.

Wanted:
A Sunday of Thanksgiving

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—His Majesty King George made a request of his subjects in his vast Empire to observe May 26 as a Sunday of special prayer and intercession. Those who attended the churches here know how beautiful the services were and how thankful we should be for the opportunity to worship all together. Since then we have been told that an army fighting night and day against terrible odds has been saved, 350,000 precious lives. Is it not expected of us to thank God all together again in our churches for this miracle? A Sunday should be set aside in thanksgiving.

DEVOUTLY THANKFUL

Shanghai, June 6.

"Is it Wise?":
The Price of Litigation

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—The ordinary man is tendered some pretty sound advice by your correspondent who today signs himself A FOREIGN LAWYER.

He states that at the present rate of exchange CS$11,000.00 per month is not a princely income for a well-established foreign lawyer and that he is in a position to say that many established local practitioners here earn more than that figure in salary and profits. If this is not sound advice for the layman to keep away from litigation—what is?

PHEW!

Shanghai, June 6.

Municipal Advocate's Function

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—On reading through the article in your correspondence column signed A FOREIGN LAWYER, one is amazed at the ignorance displayed by a supposed member of the legal fraternity.

The functioning of a Municipal Advocate's office is in no comparison whatsoever to that of other members of the esteemed legal profession in Shanghai.

In the presentation of Court cases the Municipal Advocate has the help of a very efficient Police Force and very few cases of a civil nature pass through his hands, whereas a lawyer in civil life has a hard fight to build up his own clientele, unless he is fortunate enough in belonging to a well-known firm of attorneys, even then he would have to win his spurs before drawing a salary that would allow him to live in luxury. It is doubtful if in Shanghai under the present conditions there are more than half-a-dozen legal practitioners who can honestly say they make $11,000 clear profit per month, as it must be remembered the Municipal Advocate has no out-of-pocket expenses concerning the upkeep of his office or staff.

MAY IT PLEASE THE COURT

Road Inspection:
Need for More Latrines

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—The entrance to Route J. Prentice (off Avenue Roi Albert), named after one of Shanghai's most prominent men, is really a disgrace to the F.M.C. Health Department and Shanghai; could not something be done to prevent passers-by being asphyxiated by the gases or making a wide detour to avoid that section of the road?

For a city the size of Shanghai, there is certainly a great dearth of public latrines—especially in the French Concession. Could not some be built before the summer with its heat sets in earnest and make our daily constitutional still more unpleasant?

"Lest Ye Forget":
Can't Fight?—Give!

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—If the following could only be advocated by your paper, read, and taken to heart by the young men of this city, a lot of good would be done:—

Before young Britons wend their way out to make whoopee they might stop to remember that thousands of their countrymen have died on the battlefields during the past week while other thousands are being brought into British Hospitals, frightful casualties of War vengeance.

Stay at home and read a book for a change and send in the money you would have wasted to the British War Fund. If you can't fight—give. This also applies to ladies who expect to be taken out.

Shanghai Broadcasts:
A Question of Times

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—Recently in your columns a correspondent expressed admiration of the radio news services in Shanghai. In endorsing this I wish to go further and say that for the quantity and quality of broadcast news Shanghai has no peer in the world. How it is managed so well is really puzzling. One feature is, however, open to criticism. Not one of the many excellent stations adheres to the correct time, and one, two, three, four or even five minutes before or after the pistol is quite immaterial to one and all. Could not some improvement be made?

Armageddon:
Further Requisites for Victory

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—Further to my letter of yesterday's date, it seems to me that the success of this war depends on the following four main points:—

(1) The willingness of the people to make every sacrifice for a successful prosecution of the war.
(2) Military predominance.
(3) Financial strength and the firmness of the Country's credit, and lastly.
(4) Her reputation amongst foreign nations.

The sooner we realize these facts the better.

The Leprosarium:
Mosquito Nets Wanted

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—At the Shanghai Leprosarium are at present some 105 lepers. These people are really in a sad plight. Being unable to return to the leprosarium built for them a few years ago at Tazang, they are now housed in bamboo sheds, and mosquitoes are plentiful. Only a few have mosquito nets. I wonder if I may appeal to the Shanghai public for some thirty mosquito nets.

Last year I made a similar appeal for the patients at Tuberculosis Hospital, 37B Brenan Road, with the result that those patients were supplied.

In a way the lepers are no refugees. Those in the leprosarium have voluntarily segregated themselves for our protection and we should be willing as non-lepers to support them gladly for this their voluntary segregation to protect us.

Gifts of mosquito nets, or the wherewithal with which these nets can be purchased, can be sent to me, at 7 Edinburgh Road.

Congratulations From South Africa
Message from Gen. Smuts To Mr. Churchill

London, June 6.

General J. C. Smuts, the Prime Minister of South Africa, has sent the following message to Mr. Winston Churchill, the British Premier:

"On behalf of the Government and people of the Union, I wish to convey to you our sincerest congratulations on the unparalleled feat of evacuating the entire British Expeditionary Force from Dunkirk, in the face of vastly superior forces.

"The Navy, Army and Air Force shared in a performance, of which South Africa, with the rest of the Commonwealth, is justly proud.

"South Africa salutes their British comrades' triumph, which we trust and pray will presage a final victory."

Mr. Churchill telegraphed his thanks to General Smuts for his encouraging words.—Reuter.

Allies Ask to Buy Old U.S. War Stocks
Original Plane Programme Now Completed

New York, June 7.

Mr. Henry Morgenthau, Secretary of the Treasury, stated at a press conference that the Anglo-French Purchasing Board had formally requested to be allowed to buy surplus World War Army stocks. The request had been passed on to the War Department.

Mr. Morgenthau added the Allies' original purchasing programme for planes and aircraft engines had been completed. He had already discussed a new buying plan with the Allied representatives.—Reuter.

German Losses About Half a Million
More Hospitals Needed to Care for Casualties

London, June 6.

It is authoritatively estimated that German losses in the Flanders battle amount to between 400,000 and 500,000 men out of 2,500,000 soldiers sent into the fray.

Out of 80 German divisions engaged, ten were armoured and five were motorized. Between one third and a half of these fifteen divisions were lost.

It is stressed that the German losses far exceeded the expectations of the German High Command because of the fact that the German authorities were compelled at the last minute to requisition many buildings to transform them into hospitals.—Havas.

RAWLPLUGS

For Every Fixing Job

Large or Small

IF you have to fix a soap-dish—use Rawlplugs. If you have to fix a heavy lathe or dynamo—you should still use Rawlplugs. The Rawlplug method enables anyone to make firm, permanent and economical fixings. The Rawlplug way is much quicker and easier than any other, and does not damage walls or decorations.

There is a Rawlplug suitable for use with any size of screw, from the smallest (No. 3) for fixing light wiring, to the largest size (No. 30) for use with ¾" coach screws.

When you have to make a fixture in brick, concrete, tiles, stone, plaster, etc., use Rawlplugs.

Wash basin fixed to tile.

Dynamo fixed to concrete.

2 PRODUCTS FOR EVERY HANDYMAN

Rawlplug DUROFIX

The heat and waterproof adhesive. Repairs made with Durofix will withstand boiling water or the heat of an oven. It is colourless and ready for instant use. Ideal for mending broken crockery and for all sports repairs, as once it has set, it will not become tacky from the moisture of the hand. Invaluable for all wireless jobs, as it is a non-conductor.

Rawlplug PLASTIC WOOD

Plastic Wood is a pliable material which can be moulded and fashioned to any desired shape. When it has been exposed to the air, it becomes solid and hard, in fact it becomes exactly like real wood, and can be cut, planed, polished, painted and varnished. Nails and screws can be successfully driven into it. It does not blister, crack or decay.

Seventy Years Ago

FROM THE "NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS," OF JUNE 8, 1870

The report which we publish below of the working of the Blind Asylum during the past year, shows that the institution has gone on well, under the careful management of the Rev. E. W. Syle. Forty blind persons have been supported during the year, at a cost of Tls. 985, but Tls. 100 of this sum was realized by the sale of mats and string made by the blind. It is interesting to learn that the "work" principle which has been introduced into this asylum, has been copied by a newly established Chinese institution, situated in the southwest section of the city. A beginning has been made, in teaching the inmates to read by means of raised characters. The total income for 1869, including a balance of Tls. 445 brought forward from previous year, was Tls. 1,442, and the year's outlay Tls. 900 leaving a balance in hand of Tls. 542, on December 31, 1869, but one of the Society's chief sources of income—certain shares held by it in the Soochow Bridge—is likely to fail this year, in consequence, we presume, of the larger outlay on the new bridge; so that it will have to rely greatly on charitable subscriptions, for current support.

Something for the Wedding Guests

The great day of two people's lives must be celebrated in fitting style—that is the considered opinion which prevails over the earth's surface. Go where you will—even into the African jungle—a wedding is a synonym for a feast. The bride of course is far above such considerations, and the bridegroom, too, probably would not be able to state correctly what he had eaten (if anything) on the great day. But for the guests the wedding feast really has interest, and after all they deserve the best consideration.

They have put their hands into their 100 pockets — some deeper than others, but all are worthy—and brought out the wherewithal to buy a toast-rack, a milk jug, cocktail shaker, or whatever appears most appropriate to the disposition of the couple most concerned. They have bought new clothes to grace the day, or at any rate have had what they already possess groomed to the utmost. To them is certainly due something exhilarating in the way of drinks and good in the way of eats.

On the great day who would wish to see their guests quaffing the bridal toast and then starting back doubtfully and looking surprisedly into their champagne glasses? Or endeavouring unsuccessfully to deal with a bridal cake the sugar of which is apparently carved out of marble? Guests have less reason to soar above mundane considerations than have the bridal pair or their immediate families. Their feet still heavily tread this earth and it takes something good to lighten them in these days.

Foxx's 9th Inning Home Run Turns Defeat Into Victory

Mighty Blow Puts Red Sox in Better Position; Rookie Sensation Hits Two Home Runs

New York, June 6.

THE Boston Red Sox picked up a half game on the idle Cleveland Indians and a full game on the Detroit Tigers and New York Yankees today to cement their grip on the American League lead by trimming the St. Louis Browns by a score of 3-1 behind the masterful hurling of veteran Lefty Grove.

Grove allowed only six scattered safeties in pitching his team to victory, but it was Jimmy Foxx whom the veteran really had to thank for the triumph, for it was Jimmy Foxx who stepped to the plate with two men aboard in the ninth and clouted a home run to convert a 1-0 defeat into a 3-1 triumph.

The Chicago White Sox handed the New York Yankees another jolt, this time by 4-3. Hits by Kreevich and Wright in the ninth inning broke a 3-3 deadlock and gave the House victory over the world champions.

The Philadelphia Athletics scored a surprise 7-4 triumph over the Detroit Tigers, who have been playing excellent ball of late, when Ross clouted a home run in the third inning to climax a five run rally.

Bees Beaten

In the National League, the Pittsburgh Pirates moved into a tie for seventh place by beating the Boston Bees, their chief rivals for the position, by 7-6. Triples by Elliott and Gustine featured the Pirate attack.

The Chicago Cubs pounded out an easy 11-5 triumph over the Philadelphia Phillies, when Rookie Bill Nicholson, sensation of the National League, blasted two home runs over the centre field wall to drive six runs across the plate.

The New York Giants and Cincinnati Reds were not scheduled.

Japanese Athletes Take Three of Four Finals; Many Heats Also Held

Tokyo, June 7.

Japanese track and field stars grabbed the spotlight at the opening day's contests in the East Asia Athletic Meet here yesterday when they took three of the four finals and placed in all the preliminary heats on the programme.

The home forces also scored victories in the basketball, baseball, volleyball, table tennis and bicycle racing events.

Outstanding performer on the opening day's programme at the Meiji Shrine Stadium was Tamura, Japanese distance star, who spreadeagled the field in the 5,000 metre event to set a new Japanese record.

Another Japanese distance runner who had little difficulty taking his specialty was Osawa of Nippon University who ran away with the 3,000 metre steeplechase in 9.34. He was followed by two team mates, giving Japan a clean sweep in the grueling event.

Third Japanese Victory

The third Japanese victory went to Miss Yoshino, a higher girls' school teacher, who won the woman's 100 metre final in 13.1.

The only other final, the shotput, was won by Torbin of Manchoukuo who tossed the iron ball 13.36 metres. Second place went to Amante of the Philippines with a heave of 13.03 metres while Mizukura of Japan notched the remaining points with a putt of 12.61 metres.

In the sprint preliminaries Japan and the Philippines divided honours, each taking one of the two heats in both the 100 and 200 metre dashes.

Yoshioka, Japan's Olympic veteran who was a constant threat at the Berlin games in 1936 with his fast breaking start, rang, up a 10.8 in the century while his countryman, Nakano, took the other furlong trial in 22.8.

In the 400 metres the Philippines took both trials, the best time being 50.1, while Kawamura and Murakami ran through the 110 metre hurdle trials in 15.4 and 15.6 respectively to take the top places.

The baseball round-robin saw a Japanese team come up from behind in the last of the ninth to nip Hawaii 4-3 while Manchoukuo took the Philippines into camp in the other game 7-2.

In basketball the Philippines took a nip and tuck game from Manchoukuo 39-34 while Japan ran roughshod over China 70-34.—Domei.

Big Athletic Meeting Here Today

Shanghai's Best Athletes To Race for Honours

The Shanghai Annual Track and Field Meet held under the auspices of the Shanghai Track and Field Association (International), will stage its final day of competition on the grounds of the Shanghai American School this afternoon at 2 p.m. This will be the last of the athletic meets to be held this season, and will come as a climax, as it brings all the best athletes of Shanghai together after a successful season of training.

Under the capable management of Mr. G. H. Wade, the Police team of Crouch, Fonseca, Miranoff, Prokofieff and Bader created a big surprise over the two-year reigning champions—the Foreign "Y" last Saturday when they finished on top with 22 points against the 'Ymcas' 19. With the lawmen placing in practically every event the "Y" will find it difficult to hold on to the penant this year.

Judging by the times clocked during the heats, the 100 yards will fall to neither the Police team nor the "Y" men. With C. Edwards and Novogorodoff in the finals it will be a matter of looking out for the third position. But with Fonseca in rare form this season it would be dangerous to leave him out for the third position. Then there is Mudry of the U.S. Marines as well as Volodchenko ("Y"). All these runners have beaten each other this season by a step, and it would be difficult to guarantee who will break the tape in this last major 100 yards of the season.

The 220 will see Novgorodoff, Edwards Kotzmann, Fonseca Volodchenko and Campbell (Seaforths) in the finals. This will be a feature event including as it does the cream of the city's sprinters. Fonseca stands a very good chance here to break the tape as he has on many occasions beaten Kotzmann and Novgorodoff while C. Edwards is more than a threat and will be the man to watch.

Polo Plans for This Afternoon

Light Horse Team Will Face Mixed Grill

BY "THE CHASER"

This afternoon the Light Horse team for the Army Cup tournament will be severely tested when they meet the Mixed Grill in a practice game over four chukkers. The Light Horse will be represented in full force A. A. White, E. B. Moller, R. J. Elles and Hughes—while the Mixed Grill—L. Riggio, Col. Hornby, N. I. Krikoriantz—will again have Williams to play in the absence of their fourth man who has not been selected yet.

There will be only two practice games today as the Hon. Field Secretary did not receive sufficient names to arrange any more. Members are again reminded that if they wish to play on Saturdays they must send in their names to the Hon. Field Secretary not later than noon on Friday.

A Club team consisting of A. J. Clark, N. F. Allman, H. A. White and G. Lacks will play the Seaforths who, at the time of writing had only managed to find three players—Hammond Chambers, Macfarlane and Gray.

The following is the schedule for this afternoon.

4.30 p.m. to 5.15 p.m.—four chukkers. Light Horse (Reds) A. A. White, E. B. Moller, R. J. Elles and W. B. Hughes. Mixed Grill (White) Riggio, Col. Hornby, N. I. Krikoriantz and Williams.

5.15 p.m. to 6 p.m.—four chukkers. Club "A" (Reds) S. J. Clark, N. F. Allman, H. A. White and G. W. Lacks Seaforths (White) Hammond-Chambers, Macfarlane, Gray and A. N. Other. 6 p.m. to dusk—pick up chukkers.

Parsee Cricket Club Match Tomorrow

In an intra-club match to be played tomorrow on the Parsee Cricket Club ground beginning at 3 p.m., the following teams will meet.

England Will Meet China Today

Mini-Soccer Final at Aurora; Dinner Held On Thursday

England will clash with China today in the final of the Mini-Soccer international tournament at Aurora University, beginning 5.30 p.m.

A very pleasant time was spent by representatives of Shanghai Press at a dinner given by the Aurora Mini-soccer Association on Thursday night.

In his address, made after the dinner, Rev. R. Dailey, the President of the Association, thanked the local newspapermen for the co-operation they gave in making the season a most successful one and outlined the benefits brought by the league, stating that the body was formed in order to give students a reason to stay on the campus, since the Sino-Japanese conflict had made it impossible for them to wander out of the Concessions in their free time. Besides, he continued, the Association has been able to help local charity organizations, the proceeds of certain games going to the poor Chinese patients of the Sacred Heart Hospital, while the French Red Cross will also benefit from the games which will be played during the week-end.

The Association have announced that the game between a French team and the 3 Stars has been cancelled, since it was better to do so after the incident which occurred during the China-France game, when two players had to be sent off the field.

The remaining programme of the season is now as follows:—

TODAY

5.30 p.m.—China—England.

TOMORROW

4.30 p.m.—Russian Club—J.R.C. (2nd Div. Championship); 5.45 p.m.—East Surreys—U.T.P. (1st Div. Championship).

Saturday, June 15, 5.30 p.m.—Charity Game (Proceeds going to Sacred Heart Hospital); Foreigners—Chinese.

The following will represent China and England in today's game:—

England:—Morris, Arnold, Harrison, Jelly, Parr, J. Ward, Kinsella and McClarty.

China:—P. K. Zing, L. K. Chang, S. Z. Nei, N. L. Meng, M. S. Chang, K. H. Huang, K. S. Sutn (Reserves: S. M. Tsai, L. H. Han, P. T. Kau).

The Association has ruled that the following be suspended for two games each: K. Defris (J.R.C.) protesting referee's decision during the China—Palestine game; Vinh (French Forces) and Y. C. Chen (U.T.P.) for fighting during the China—France game.

Madar Knocks Up Century

Fine Effort Nearly Saves Day for Tyros But Batsman Retires at 103; Three Half-Centuries

A FINE century by Harry Madar was the feature of the two-evening friendly game between two Recs' sides, the Colts Juniors and the Tyros Juniors, which took place on the Recs' ground yesterday and Thursday. The Colts, batting on Thursday scored 213 in fast time and seemed immune from defeat but the Tyros, thanks to Madar's splendid innings nearly upset all expectations and just failed, being all out for 198 to allow the Colts to win by 15 runs. After Madar had scored 103 he retired but had he continued it is more than probable that the losers would have won.

Three half-centuries were the highlight of the Colts knock, Kliene, Brodd and Weidman scoring 50, 58 and 51 respectively with the latter two retiring immediately after exceeding the fifty mark. Apart from these three and Cooke who recorded a nice 24, the other batsmen failed. Boundary hits were seen in abundance and the spectators were treated to some fireworks by all the high scorers. Best of the bowlers was Barma, a youngster who promises well with his good length slows. He took four wickets for 29 when the high scorers were going mad.

The Tyros began in excellent fashion last night and had 80 on the board for the loss of the first three wickets, Blackwood and Anderson wasting no time going after the bowling. Madar then came into his own and with some skilful batsmanship soon had the attack demoralized. He batted for 100 minutes and always looked on top of the bowling, although he was fortunate on more than one occasion not to have been dismissed. When victory for the Tyros was in sight he retired after reaching 103 which included no less than two splendid sixes and the huge amount of sixteen fours. He appears to have regained the form he showed a few years ago and if last night's display is any criterion he should do well this summer. None of the later batsmen did anything of note.

Marcal captured three wickets for 35, while Davis, coming on early, secured two victims for but twelve runs.

Gallant Bid Just Falls Short

Schools Cricket XI Come Within 29 Runs of Score Put Up by S.C.C. Side

The Combined Schools XI made a gallant effort yesterday evening on the S.C.C. Small Ground to overcome the bad position in which they found themselves at the close of play the previous afternoon, but the deficit was too much and they finally were all out for 114, thus losing the game against the S.C.C. side by 29 runs, the winners having knocked up 143 on Thursday.

When play was resumed yesterday the Schools were in the unenviable position of already having lost five good wickets for 27 and R. Lawrance was sent back for a "duck" with the told unchanged. Anstice and Viatkin then came together and very nearly extricated their team from the mess they found themselves in. Anstice played good cricket and quickly ran up 25 before he was dismissed by Sluis. The score was then 60. Viatkin, however, wielding a heavy blade, pushed the score on to 80 before he was unfortunately run out for a splendid 36. Had he remained the youngsters may have pulled a surprise packet, but though the tail kept going for a little, the final batsman was sent back when the board read 114, just 29 runs short of the S.C.C. total.

Sluis was the most successful bowler, securing three wickets at trifling cost, while Gates disposed of four batsmen for only 22.

British Press on German Attack

Still Too Early to Draw Conclusions; Valuable Support of R.A.F.

London, June 7.

British newspapers today generally take the view that it is too early to draw conclusions from the new German offensive, and much comment is devoted to the home front. The "Daily Telegraph" writes: "Whatever the great new battle raging in northern France may bring hereafter, the first shock of the German onslaught has made no appreciable impression on the defence.

"General Weygand has made good use of the fortnight's respite to consolidate his line in depth behind river barriers. His armies are feeling the electric touch of a more vigorous leadership, of which he himself is the fount and head, and they are throwing themselves into the fight with desperate ardour born of the consciousness that this time nothing less than Paris is at stake.

"On land, the immediate British contribution to the fight is small, but in the air the Royal Air Force is rendering invaluable support to its French allies both at the scene of battle and on lines of supply and communication."

Referring to the new measures to restrict consumption announced by Major Lloyd George, the "Telegraph" says that "this is part, a small part indeed, of consumers contribution to the war effort."

Ready and Anxious

"The country," the newspaper declares, "is ready and anxious to accept whatever sacrifices are asked of it."

In similar vein, "The Times" states that "the new orders issued yesterday by the Board of Trade impose drastic restrictions upon private consumption; and more are foreshadowed. They will be welcomed by the public, which ever since war was declared has asked to be told with authority by what sacrifices and by what abstinences it could best help the national effort."

Commenting on the broadcast by the French Premier, M. Reynaud, the "Daily Herald" says: "Reynaud speaks words which cheer the French nation. They cheer us too. His message is that Weygand is satisfied with the manner and course of the new battle. This good news will not give rise to exaggerated optimism either in France or Britain. Both nations had more synthetic comfort than they can stomach in the opening months of the war.

"But Weygand is known to be a realist. He would not express satisfaction he does not truly feel. Therefore, we are entitled to share his satisfaction."—Reuter.

Britain Unconquerable Says U.S. Journal

Evacuation for Dunkirk Greatly Admired

London, June 7.

An American newspaper, the "Charlotte Observer," states: "A Government and people which can do what Great Britain has just accomplished, in extricating a large proportion of a trapped army in Flanders, and transporting it across the English Channel, in spite of the deadly and unrelenting fire of German attackers, must establish itself in the fair mind of the world as being unconquerable," according to a special commentary issued here.

"Nations like these," the paper adds, "are never conquered."—Reuter.

Golf Assoc. Clamps Down on Amateurs

"Horrible Example" Sought To Warn Others

New York, June 6.

Mr. Harold W. Pierce, president of the United States Golf Association, has warned the nation's amateur golfers that the U.S.G.A. is planning a stricter application of the amateur rule in future.

He stated that the U.S.G.A. would be willing to make an example of any prominent player found overstepping the bounds of amateur conduct.

He said that the U.S.G.A. did not mean to go out of its way to do any detective work, but, he added, he would welcome the chance to air any flagrant violations by a leading amateur so that such a case would serve as a "horrible example" for the rest of the country's amateurs. The particular section of the amateur code to which he referred was that dealing with the payment of expense money.—Reuter.

Shanghai Wheelers to Hold Annual Meeting

1. Receiving, considering, and if thought fit, adoption of the report for the past season, and the Finance Statement of the Association.
2. Electing the Officers of the Association.
3. Discussing the date of next bicycle race meeting and programmes.

All members are being requested to attend the meeting. Refreshments will be served as an added inducement.

Detained M.P. Appeals

London, June 7.

Replying to a question as to whether Captain Archibald Ramsay had exercised his right to appeal to an advisory committee, Sir John Anderson, Home Secretary and Minister for Home Security, said he had done so and the committee would consider his case as soon as possible.

As soon as the committe reports, he would inform the House of his decision, he said. Captain Ramsay, Unionist member of Parliament for the Peebles and Southern Division of Midlothian and Peebles, was detained under defence regulations.—Reuter.

At the Front With the French Artillery

The picture shows ammunition being carried up to a French gun, "somewhere in France." This picture was taken before the Nazi attempt at "blitzkrieg," while the situation was comparatively stabilized. Operations like this are usually carried out at night when there is any possibility of a gun's position being spotted by the enemy as a result of daylight movement.

Land Valuers Hold Annual Meeting

New Officers Elected for 1940; Situation Outlined In Chairman's Address

The Shanghai Land Valuers and Surveyors' Society held its seventeenth annual general meeting in the offices of the Shanghai Land Investment Co., Ltd., 100 Jinkee Road, at 4.30 p.m. yesterday. After the meeting was opened by Mr. A. W. Buck, the Hon. Secretary of the Society, Mr. R. D. K. Silby, the Chairman, made a statement to the effect that the credit balance of the society was $238.15, approximately $30 less than last year. There were no meetings held last year, but the Committee had the Chinese translation in the Society's book of scale of charges carefully checked by Mr. Wang I-Ting, since some scales, particularly scale 5, did not mean the same as the English wording. The Society's scale of charges was circulated among members and all principal firms and banks.

Resolutions were then proposed and accepted. The Committee passed the report and accounts, while the subscription for the current year was set at $5. The Committee for the ensuing year was proposed and following were elected: Messrs. H. Berents, J. T. W. Brooke, A. W. Buck, N. E. Kent, J. R. Maugham and R. D. K. Silby. Mr. N. E. Kent was elected Chairman of the Society.

Many Problems

In addressing the meeting, Mr. Silby said that he was sure that they would appreciate the fact that many problems existed today in connection with real property and the restrictions to the healthy economic improvement in property during the past decade had increased rather than diminished. Taking into consideration the steady increase of property values since the formation of the Settlement and French Concession, the situation during the past seven years had been most unsatisfactory. The speaker then referred to the time when investment in real property in Shanghai was regarded as the best possible investment and the investment of money on mortgage as guilt-edged.

He would not deny, he continued, that certain landlords took advantage of an abnormal demand for accommodation and reaped profits as a result of the exploitation of tenants, but they were the few exceptions. The majority of the landlords were suffering great hardship particularly in the case of the properties where they were responsible for water and other charges. A very large percentage of the Municipal Councils' income was derived from the taxation of property, increase in rent meant an increase in the value of the land which naturally led to increased revenue for the Councils, a factor of utmost importance to the welfare of this city.

Inequitable Restrictions

It was vitally important that as far as possible all inequitable restrictions to the natural growth of such fundamental source of revenue be removed. Restrictions which were inequitable because the procedure in the Chinese Courts in cases of rental disputes did not permit the proper consideration of the landlord's point of view. That was the crux of the particular problem. That was the problem which the Society should take the lead in tackling.

In conclusion, he went on to say, it was quite apparent how utterly insignificant this problem was when compared with the astounding problems when the very foundations of civilization were being attacked, nevertheless the Society existed and one of its purposes was to protect the interests of property owners and the investing public.

The meeting whole heartedly agreed with the suggestion outlined by Mr. Silby and a sub-committee was elected to consider the matter and prepare a memorandum.

With the French Army on the Aisne, June 7.

French tank officers here yesterday revealed the almost incredible numerical and qualitative strength of German panzer divisions participating in the German drive at the heart of France.

These officers participated in the brilliant action which halted the rush of German mechanized units to the Aisne River, although, in many of these combats, French tanks were said to have been outnumbered ten to one. The exact figures of the German panzer divisions were given as "a word to the wise."

A German mechanized division, such as those which broke through the Sedan sector, is composed of two regiments of 250 tanks each. The total strength of a regiment is composed of the following categories.

Fifty heavy tanks, averaging between 20 and 40 tons. Fifty tanks, averaging 15 tons. One hundred and fifty eight-ton and 250 six-ton tanks, which form the advanced guard and are used for scout duty.

Not All!

This is not all, the officers said. This enormous mass of 500 tanks is accompanied by 24 tractors upon which guns are mounted, one battalion of anti-tank guns composed of 36 47 mm. guns on tractors and one regiment of motorized troops heavily armed. A battalion of motorized engineers also accompanies these units, the French officers said.

This organization of 500 tanks closely resembles a fleet, in which the heavy tanks constitute the battle fleet, the 15-ton tanks act as cruisers and the eight and six-ton tanks as destroyers and torpedo boats respectively, the officers declared.

Contact with the enemy and the battle order is also bassed on fleet tactics, they said. Twenty-four four-inch guns are employed to keep the enemy at a distance and to smash all obstacles in the path of the tanks. Thirty-six anti-tank guns are placed forward to neutralize enemy mechanized units sent out to combat the attacking forces.—United Press.

Unidentified Planes Over Sweden

Stockholm, June 7.

Three unidentified planes flew over the Swedish province of Bohslaen yesterday afternoon, the Swedish news agency announced this morning. One of the planes, brought down by anti-aircraft fire, crashed and the members of the crew all perished.

It was also reported today that four German parachutists were arrested on the Swedish side of Norway's frontier yesterday. They were sent to an internment camp.

An air raid warning was sounded yesterday at the Swedish railway station of Torne Traesk, about 30 kilometres East of the Norwegian frontier in the North.—Havas.

Chinese Dollar Improves

Nervousness Prevails on Local Exchange Market; "Surprised, Bewildered"

Nervousness prevailed on the local exchange market throughout yesterday as a result of the strong increase in the London-New York cross-rate which, closing at 5⅛, surprised and bewildered the local exchange market, to the extent that it was difficult to establish initial inter-bank quotations and resultant exchange transactions.

Many Shanghai buyers appeared to be prepared to take up foreign exchange at the New York closing quotations but there were no sellers. Later during the morning session the first cash rate was established at 5⅝, but for some considerable time it remained practically impossible to transact any forward business. As the session progressed, it became possible to purchase U. S. dollars for July delivery at 5⅛. Cash rates declined to 5⅛ temporarily during the eratic and somewhat nervous session but towards the noon closing hour the rate became somewhat firmer, 5⅜ being quoted for cash transactions.

There was almost no difference between cash and June quotations, indicating an expected firmness in the market.

Quotations on the Shanghai Stock Exchange were somewhat higher than yesterday's, although there seemed to be short-covering for the week-end settlement.

Ireland Continues Her Preparation for War

Eire Would Resist by All Means in Her Power

Dublin, June 7.

The Prime Minister, Mr. Eamon de Valera, in an exclusive statement to the United Press today, said that Eire was determined to resist with all the means at her power any attempt to invade her neural territory.

"Ireland today finds herself with war very near her shores,' the Prime Minister said.

"In the conflict which is now raging —in which powerful belligerents are locked in deadly combat—the fights of small people count for little. The small countries have but one course to follow and that is to build up their own strength and rely on their own spirit to repel invasion."

Mr. de Valera's statement today followed the introduction into Parliament yesterday of the National Defence Forces Bill, which calls for the mobilization of Eire's armed forces and would enable the Government to declare a state of emergency should events warrant such moves.

The bill has yet to receive Parliament's approval, although it has already passed the second reading and, in the opinion of political observers, will "undoubtedly" be approved.—United Press.

Chinese Murdered in Broad Daylight

Chinese Teacher Shot by Gunman Near Sinza P.S.

Another murder was committed in Shanghai yesterday, when Mr. Sung Shing Wu of 52 Lane 295 Myburgh Road was shot dead by a gunman at 12.30 p.m. when he was entering his lane.

The victim, 46 years of age, was a teacher of the Shanghai Middle School on the corner of Chengtu and Bubbling Well Roads. He was going home for tiffin when a Chinese cyclist ran into him and opened fire from his automatic pistol. Three shots were fired and two bullets entered the victim's head, while the third one lodged itself in his chest.

Notwithstanding the fact that the murder was committed in the immediate vicinity of the Sinza police station and the street was crowded with people, the assailant mounted his bicycle and got away before the Police arrived on the scene.

It is believed that the murder was committed on political grounds, although the Police have several other clues to work upon.

Paris Prepares for Parachutists

Camouflaged Buses Seen In Streets

Paris, June 7.

Military authorities yesterday took drastic steps to counter possible attacks by soldiers landed from German 'planes. Parisians entering the city were surprised to see camouflaged buses drawn up across wide streets and squares.

A War Ministry communiqué reassured the public that there was no need for anxiety about measures which were taken in Paris and other parts of the country. "It is quite normal for precautions to be taken against possible landing of parachutists or transport 'planes and no other significance should be attached to these measures," the communiqué states.—Reuter.

C.-in-C.'s Wife to Sail To United States

Mrs. T. C. Hart to Leave On Presdt. Cleveland

Mrs. Thomas C. Hart, wife of the Commander-in-Chief of the U. S. Asiatic Fleet, will probably leave for United States aboard President Cleveland on Sunday, together with her two daughters. It is not known how long she will stay in the States, but it is presumed that she will return to Shanghai in autumn.

Meanwhile, the U.S.S. Augusta, flagship of U. S. Asiatic Fleet, will sail on her summer cruise to Tsingtao and Chefoo some time next week and will be replaced by U.S.S. Marblehead which is due to arrive in port from Manila.

WHAT STOMACH SUFFERERS CAN EAT

You can't lay up a sick stomach. Your body must be nourished even though solid food and most liquid foods cause pain and vomiting.

The problem has always been to find a food that soothes the inflamed stomach walls and provides all the nourishment needed for recovery. Doctors and nurses agree that Horlicks is such a food. It places no strain upon the digestion, but provides all the body-building elements that the weakened system needs. Convalescence is shortened, new strength and energy pour into the veins with every cupful of Horlicks.

Horlicks is a complete balanced food in a very palatable form. It has been given with remarkable success in the most severe cases of gastritis. Get Horlicks to-day from your usual store. (1)

Chinese Girl Leaps to Death from 10th Floor

Route Cardinal Mercier Scene of Suicide

Miss Chang Ai Tshing, a pretty Chinese girl of 26, leaped from the 10th floor of the Grosvenor Building at Route Cardinal Mercier to her death at 8.20 p.m. last night.

No motive could be found late last night, but it is known that Miss Chang came to the Grosvenor Building and told the lift-boy to take her to the 10th floor, saying that she wished to see some friends. A few minutes later she was found on the pavement with her skull broken into two. She was dead before any help could be reached.

The body was taken to the Municipal mortuary and the Police are making investigations.

Saridon

Saridon always stops any pain in less than 10 minutes and is perfectly safe and harmless

Below are a few of the many testimonials from prominent Doctors recently received:

"Saridon goes straight to the seat of the trouble — and nowhere else. Saridon has no by-effects on stomach, heart or kidneys. It does not induce drowsiness, and thus never interferes with the patient's daily duty." Dr. S.P.K., M.D.

"Your Saridon is a great scientific discovery because it always banishes pain in 10 minutes or quicker and overcomes malaise; Saridon also reduces febrile temperature, but does not affect normal temperature." Dr. K.P.C., M.D.

"With great confidence I prescribe Saridon because Saridon is the quickest-acting non-narcotic analgesic on the market and because Saridon is always reliable and perfectly safe. Dr. L.S.T., M.D.

"Saridon is excellent. It does more than what is claimed for it. Can be used with impunity even in cases of failing heart." Dr. T.M.T., M.D.

"I find that Saridon gives better results than anything that I have used outside of opiates which are often objectionable in many ways and not as satisfactory as your Saridon." Dr. C.T.W., M.D.

"My results with Saridon have been wonderful. I am prescribing it daily and using it often in my own family." Dr. S.N.G., M.D.

IMPARTIAL NOT NEUTRAL

REALISTS AT THE HELM

If Mr. Winston Churchill's speech on Tuesday was inspiring, the same can with complete safety be said of the broadcast which M. Paul Reynaud, the French Premier, made on Thursday evening, an account of which appears in another column. A day after the second great German onslaught had commenced he was able to state that General Maxime Weygand had expressed his satisfaction with the manner in which the battle on the Somme was being waged and the way his orders to resist at all costs have been executed. And what is of even greater importance M. Reynaud gave the lie to the rumours, obviously inspired by the enemy, concerning alleged differences between the Allies. In this connection it has to be remembered that it is part of the German policy to drive a wedge between them. It was what they attempted to do during the last war on many an occasion, especially when the Allies suffered reverses. They continued to do the same thing during the uneasy years before these hostilities broke out, and it was only to be expected that following their victory in Flanders they would endeavour to do the same thing again. They will fail just as completely on this occasion as they have done in the past, for there is such a community of purpose between the Allies who face the gravest dangers, that there is the fullest realization by the Allies that division would mean their ultimate downfall, the destruction of their nations, and the subjection of their peoples to the slavery to which so many other nations who have fallen under the sway of the Germans have already become victims. The Allies together with other European countries have but one vital interest and that is to avoid German hegemony. That interest, though Signor Mussolini apparently refuses to admit it, is as much Italy's as it is other nations'. No question of gratitude for what Signor Mussolini might do to assist Herr Hitler to secure victory would for one moment ensure that in return Italian aspirations would be rewarded, or secure Italian safety and independence. If Italians have any idea that they will remain as equal partners with Germany in an Axis-dominated Europe, there cannot be the slightest doubt that in the event of an Axis victory they would very speedily be disillusioned.

During the past fortnight as M. Reynaud pointed out he had addressed the nation three times. The first was to announce that the Germans were at the gates of Amiens; the second to inform the country of the defection of King Leopold, and on this third occasion, in an hour which remains serious he brings reason for hope. Germany has launched three undertakings conducted with all the brutality with which the world has become so accustomed as almost to take it for granted. The forthcoming annihilation of the Allied forces in Flanders and a capitulation unprecedented in the history of the world was confidently forecast. The Germans failed of their main objective; the Allies escaped with the greater part of their troops. Then the Germans embarked upon a spectacular raid upon Paris, in which hundreds of bombers took part. If it was designed to shake the moral of the Parisians it failed lamentably of its purpose, for the soul of Paris stood undismayed despite the grievous, and wanton slaughter, and injury inflicted upon so many civilians. It is satisfactory to learn that the Allies retaliated in kind, that Dortmund, Dusseldorf, Cologne, Essen, Manneheim, Ulm and Ludwigshaven all well recognized military objectives have been thoroughly bombed in return. It is satisfactory to note that M. Reynaud has definitely announced that for every raid against one French town, reprisals in kind will be exacted. Only by taking the war to a Germany, which can again boast that she is fighting upon foreign territory, can the Allies hope to make any impression upon the German people. It is necessary that their complacence shall be rudely disturbed, and the bombing of many towns and cities in Germany in answer to similar onslaughts on Allied centres is the only effective means of bringing it about. To many who revere the ideals of decency, humanity and mercy this may seem a horrible contention, but is not what the Germans are doing equally horrible? There can be no turning of the cheek in times of war, but the application of the lex talionis with every implication which such a procedure involves.

Now the Allies are faced with the third great German undertaking,—the "Battle of France," as M. Reynaud so aptly terms it. It has opened by no means badly. The Germans have succeeded in piercing the Weygand Line as it could be expected they would. Initial impetus enhances such a possibility, but though the mechanized units have managed to filter through the line, the German troops following them have encountered strongly maintained positions from which the Allies are taking a terrible toll from the men advancing en masse, and the tanks themselves run grave risks of being cut off, or rendered useless by the failure of supplies to follow them closely. It is impossible at so early a stage to endeavour to estimate the damage which has been inflicted upon the enemy, but it is reported that mechanized units destroyed in the first day's fighting number hundreds. General Weygand expresses satisfaction, and it is to be believed that he would not do so without very good reason. Thus the German dream of victory is being met by Allied resistance. The France that stands in Germany's path is not that France which existed during the last twenty years, the Britain that is standing by her side is not Britain that was seen between two great wars. There is no decadence. The Germans admit themselves the stubbornness and gallantry with which they have been met. Factors are daily arising which will contribute to the ultimate defeat of Germany. The democracies, as M. Reynaud so rightly has said, have for a long time lacked clear sight; the conception of the fatherland and of military values has long been neglected. But the future is faced with eyes wide open to the realities. The Allies have emerged from the era of muddled thinking, out of which it required a severe reverse to shake them. There is no failure to understand the difficult task which lies ahead, the enormous trials through which the Allies must progress to victory, no idea that the enemy will be defeated except at enormous cost. The Allies are ready to pay it, to pay it with the life blood of their sons, in order that there shall not pass away from the world all those ideals which they hold so dear, ideals which alone can save the world from the savagery and anarchy to which it would be reduced by a German victory. So with realists at the helm in both France and Great Britain those two nations are preparing to rise above their initial misfortune, and make sure that all that is of good repute in the world shall not be banished from it.

New Form of Defence

That German units have reached the Bresle River in their new offensive need cause no additional worry. This is written without any intention of minimizing the seriousness of the present position in France or of painting a comfortable picture of the task the Allies have before them in stemming the Nazi putsch. But the area between the Somme estuary and the Bresle River has for some time been a kind of no-man's land. The Germans in their occupation of Abbeville, seized several bridgeheads over the Somme, which the Allies have been unable to recapture, and thus they have had opportunities of raiding from time to time with their armoured vehicles the area immediately south of the estuary. Though there have been many fierce encounters in this region, and though the Germans have been confined in the main to the neighbourhood of the bridgeheads, these raids by armoured vehicles may have made it difficult for the Allies to consolidate their defence positions north of the Bresle River, and it is considered probable in well informed circles that the principle Allied defence line in this sector has been constructed south of this river. These defence lines have been adapted to meet the dangers of swift attacks by armoured vehicles. They would seem to consist of an echelonned series of "strong points" over a depth of about twenty miles. If this is the case, there will be no manned lines of trenches linking the strong points, and each will be a self-contained unit whose task is to break up the enemy's advance and inflict as much damage as possible. Armoured vehicles can filter through such lines of defence, but they cannot be supported and by themselves can make no permanent gains. Behind the "strong points" there is probably a solid wall of artillery and infantry, well entrenched, against which troops which might manage to get through would have to hurl themselves. On these units, also, depends the counter-attack, should such be necessary.

"Well, Well, Well"

The other night listeners-in to the Berlin broadcast were entertained to an account, apparently designed for a bone-headed public, of a meeting between the British Secret Service and the French Sûreté in Paris, at which plans to sink the American liner President Roosevelt, carrying Americans leaving the British Isles on their way back to the United States, were discussed with considerable acrimony. According to the Berlin broadcaster, the British thought that it would be best to torpedo the liner and have done with it, afterwards placing the blame on the Nazis. The French, according to the same source, disagreed. They believed that an infernal machine concealed in the liner would be simpler and just as effective. And thus arose a position in which the liner, according to announcer, might easily cross the Atlantic without being blown up in any way at all—to the confusion of Berlin's prophets, the British Secret Service, and the Surêté. The Berlin station went on to announce that a compromise of sorts had been reached, however. With the wonderful facility that Democracies possess, a solution to the difficulty agreeable to each side was reached: the liner would be both torpedoed and blown up by some infernal contraption concealed on board. And so everybody except the passengers and crew would be satisfied. Having thus retailed this Goebbelerian effort, this journal is in doubt whether it should be classified as burlesque—as many who heard it believed, owing to the proximity of the Daventry and Berlin wavelengths—or as another Teuton regurgitation. It does not much matter which. It is palpably an alibi for Nazidom dug up from the Machiavellian depths of the Berlin Propaganda Ministry, which is fearful lest something should happen to the President Roosevelt through some gallant U-boat commander ignoring his orders. Comment is almost superfluous; derision or wrath seem equally unapplicable. Perhaps it would be best to follow the example of the British Secret Service (hush!) and the Sûreté, and compromise with "Well, well, well!"

Nazis Amuse the World

Much has been said and written about the fantastic claims which the Germans have put forward with regard to alleged sinkings of British capital ships. It was for "Time" however to demonstrate how completely absurd they were with regard to the German assertion that in the operations off Norway the German air force had succeeded in bombing and destroying a cruiser of the Queen Elizabeth class. In the story which Germany liberated to the world it was stated inter alia:—

"A British battleship....was....hit between two forward turrets by a heavy calibre bomb. Half a minute later a flame 500 metres long appeared from the vessel, followed by thick smoke. When the smoke disappeared, nothing further of the vessel was seen except some floating debris."

Herr Hitler promptly bestowed a few Iron Crosses on the men responsible for this amazing feat of dive bombing, while the Nazi spokesman was reported to have said the next day "We are simply amazed ourselves that the experiment succeeded without so much as a single loss to us. Our air force was determined to send wave after wave of power-divers....to continue the assault even if at first every attacking plane was shot down. In our fondest dreams we didn't think it possible that the job would be completed in less than three minutes." "Time" tells the story at great length and then pricks the absurd German bubble with the following:—

But simple arithmetic justified the British in calling the German bombers' boast of sinking a battleship "fantastic." Greatest terminal velocity ever achieved by an air bomb of best design is 700 ft. sec. That is about half the striking speed of a 12-inch armour-piercing coast guard rifle shell at close range. But air bombs are not armour-piercing. They explode on contact. To reach a Queen Elizabeth magazine from between the forward turrets (extremely lucky hit) a bomb would have to penetrate one unarmoured deck, one 2-inch armour deck, another 1¼-inch armour deck, another 1-inch armour deck, and then the magazine's 9-inch armour ceiling—a total of 13¼ inches of armour. But the bomb would explode and stop penetrating when it hit the very first deck. Alternatively, it would have to penetrate the 10-inch armour of a turret barbette; or blast in through a gun-port, ignite a powder train down through an elevator to the magazine. Ever since three British capital ships were blown up at Jutland by failure of their flash screens, turret design has been perfected to render such accidents next to impossible. Clever though their story was, the Germans' "battleship bombed" screamer was to naval and air experts just another long shot that missed fire.

It is as well to bear this in mind when the Germans make further claims to have sunk Allied battleships or cruisers, for it is quite clear that it cannot be done by bombing.

ALONG THE HIGHWAYS

June 7.—We observe that the Hypericums are now in flower: these are most useful dwarf shrubs commonly known as St John's Wort. One of the species is known as Rose of Sharon. The best of the species grown locally are H. chinense and H. patulum; both are very attractive and so accommodating, for they will grow in the shade. They both appear to burn when planted in a position too much exposed to the afternoon sun. H. chinense is a dwarf species with larger leaves and flowers than H. patulum which grows taller and rather straggly if allowed to have its own way: the flowers produced by both are golden yellow. Both species are native to China. We remember reading, at one time, a nurseryman's description of that universally planted wichuraiana climbing rose, Dorothy Perkins. He stated in part "this is a fine climber; but the country is getting rather messed up with it." The writer may have been correct in a way, but we hope that the popularity of this rose will never result in it being discarded. It is still making a fine show in many gardens together with its near relatives, White Dorothy and Excelsa. We saw a beautiful polyantha rose adorning a pergola the other day: it was orange-scarlet and probably named Gloria Mundi, we must admit that we liked it better than Dorothy Perkins: in time, we may see more of it in local gardens. There are plenty Iris Kaempferi, or the Japanese Iris, to be seen in gardens these days some of the varieties produce huge flowers, others bear smaller ones; but they are all beautiful and almost every colour is represented. This iris likes a moist situation during the Summer while, during the Winter, it prefers to be dry at the roots. It does not object to plenty of sun, as a matter of fact, it appears to like it.—W.J.K.

THE SAVAGE IN EVE

Contradiction in Woman Confusing

Every now and then a wife does away with her husband in order to collect the insurance. Women sometimes throw vitriol in the face of a rival. Blackmail is often a feminine weapon, writes Dr. Louis E. Bisch in "Your Life."

We read about mothers who abandon, even kill, their own helpless children. The women of the French Revolution knitted in public while aristocratic heads rolled into the basket almost at their feet. During that same revolution Charlotte Corday stabbed demagogue Marat to death while he was in his bath.

How is it possible that the greatest cruelty, the most evil thoughts and deeds, can be found in a sex that likewise is the embodiment of love, sacrifice, beauty, tenderness, humility, kindness—the most idealistic concepts of which the human race is capable? Can woman be this sublime product of civilization and still remain savage?

This contradiction in woman is confusing until one realizes two fundamental characteristics of her make-up. One is that woman is emotionally incomplete; the other is that woman demands love to complete herself. Woman's entire make-up is conditioned by her procreative ability. Whether she marries or not, has children or not, pursues a career of her own or not, she cannot sidetrack the psychic effect which the organs of reproduction produce upon her. This creates mental unrest aimed at fulfilment of completion.

Through love, woman binds man to herself. It's a kind of love that gives pleasure to man as a balancing factor what woman receives from him. From this variety of love arise all the noble qualities of self-effacement and nobility with which we associate woman, and which ramify to children and others. Deprive woman of man's love, however, and the baser, more savage qualities of her instinctive nature try to assert themselves.

I do not mean to imply, of course, that every woman is conscious of her motherhood urge or even consciously links her desire to love and beloved with her instinct to reproduce. Love to the average woman is an entity and functions alone.

Emotionally-adjusted Woman Happy

The emotionally-adjusted woman is a happy one; the frustrated woman, emotionally speaking, is tormented by jealousy and envy, often by revenge. To be sure, not all women who cannot find love objects up which to extrovert their emotions become vicious. Education, intelligence, cultural background and childhood training act as repressive factors.

It must also be remembered that some women actually possess less emotion than others, hence their problem of extroversion may readily be adjusted and without the emotionalism that boils and threatens to explode when the emotionally-stronger woman is deprived of instinctive outlets.

Man definitely is an egocentric animal. Potential paternity is not a problem for him. He can be, and usually is, decidedly self-sufficient. It is not necessary for him to place too high a value upon love or sex because he does not require either, to the same degree as does woman. In other words, man is not so incomplete. The urge to paternalism is seldom strong. The protective instinct may be exercised by him, or not, as he sees fit. He fosters what he feels will please him: the pleasures of the palate, the joys of influence, power and wealth, of intellectual abstractions. He can obtain full gratification in life without making a fetish of love. Man is more or less a law or world unto himself.

Woman, on the other hand, is definitely not egocentric. Her emotions centre not on herself but on persons and things outside herself. The emotional pattern which nature has devised so that woman may give birth to, and rear, a child makes her, of necessity, one who seeks to complete herself in a child and, as substitutes and extensions to fuller gratification, in devotion to a father, a mother, a husband, friends.

"Pretty Good" British Battle Comment

French Also Quite Satisfied With Course of Operations; Not Certain Yet Where Main Attack Will Be; 2,000 Tanks, 400 Destroyed

London, June 7.

"THE situation is not too bad, in fact, it is pretty good," declared authoritative circles here today, commenting on the general situation of the battle on the Western Front. A warning, however, was given against undue optimism because it is not yet certain whether the main German attack has yet to come. The defensive zone now being held is much greater than previously imagined, these quarters added.

A military spokesman at Paris stated that the night had brought no modification in the general situation. The French, he revealed, took advantage of the hours of darkness to bring up supplies for outposts and their points of support before the battle was resumed with the same violence and almost the same front as yesterday.

German tanks, he said, only succeeded in filtering through between points of support, and their progress did not exceed six to seven miles, nor had supporting infantry been able to follow them. The Germans were now making a terrific push between the Aisne and Ailette, on the plateau north of the Aisne. The spokesman estimated that German forces comprising 40 infantry divisions and four or five armoured divisions were being employed at this point, with the apparent determination to break through at any cost.

The onslaught, he went on, resembled the violence of that on the Meuse on May 14, but with notable differences in effects. Enormous numbers of tanks, with strong infantry and artillery support, were attacking, but dive-bombing had remarkably decreased, in sharp contrast with operations in north-eastern France.

The German air force, however, was not inactive, he explained. Both bombers and reconnaissance units continued operations, particularly against lines of communication, ports and airfields. The alarm sounded in Paris this morning was due to an armada of 200 planes which were driven off and proceeded in another direction. No information had yet been received about their objective, or whether they attained it.

The French air force the spokesman added, was extremely busy and proved itself enemy number one to tanks. Employing gunfire and bombs, it claimed credit for a large proportion of the 400 tanks put out of action yesterday. It also attacked German back areas and reached German territory up to the banks of the Rhine.

French military circles are satisfied with the course of operations during the past two days, particularly with the results obtained in fighting against tanks.

Four hundred tanks, it is estimated, were destroyed out of 2,000 which Herr Hitler threw into battle. Moreover, it is added, tanks which penetrated inside the French defence system, had nowhere been followed by infantry, which had been mowed down by fire from points of support.—Reuter.

Belgian Division For Front

Paris, June 7.

A Belgian division which has been reformed in France is shortly going to the front, it is stated in Belgian quarters here.—Reuter.

French Communique

Paris, June 7.

Fighting was resumed violently this morning on the entire front from the Channel to the middle of the Aisne river.

After two days of stiff combat, the situation was summed up as follows by French military experts: South of the Somme, which the Germans succeeded in crossing at its lower flow, Allied troops are firmly established along the Bresle river, which passes through Blangy on its way to the Channel. More to the centre, the situation remained practically unchanged in the Amiens area where French troops are continuing to repulse enemy attacks near the town. The position is also the same as it was near Peronne.

There, the Germans launched an attack with about 1,000 tanks, and some of these succeeded in penetrating slightly behind the French lines. However at no spot had they advanced further than ten or twelve kilometres and they were not supported by infantry units.

At the extreme right wing of the front, fighting was resumed between the rivers Aisne and Ailette. The Germans are attacking violently in this sector, engaging forces estimated at between from four to five mechanized divisions and forty divisions. This effort can be compared in violence to the battle along the Meuse on May 19.

No Aerial Support

One of the main elements in today's operations is the absence of any aerial support for the attacking German divisions. The German planes fly high over the French lines but do not engage in any power-diving over French units. The German air force continued its observation flights and bombing attacks behind the front, concentrating chiefly on communication lines, roads, bridge, ports and airdromes.

An air raid warning was sounded in Paris this morning when 200 German planes were seen over the French lines. Late this morning there was no information regarding the destination and activity of these planes.

Nazi Plans Upset At Dunkirk

Annihilation of Allied Armies Not Achieved; Lessons of Flanders

The successful withdrawal of the large majority of the trapped Allied forces from northern France and Belgium, according to qualified observers in London, has completely upset German military plans. The real object of the furious attack launched by the Germans in the battle of Flanders, they point out, was the annihilation of the Allied armies of the north.

To achieve this end, the Germans threw into battle the whole weight of their mechanized might. All their mechanized divisions were employed as well as all their bomber squadrons. German infantry forces were much greater than the Allies, and after the defection of the Belgian King, five times as great.

The Germans suffered very heavy losses in these operations, losses which for fear of undermining the morale of the "home front," they have partly concealed. Judging from their own admissions and the estimates of neutral observers, however, it is known that German casualties were between 500,000 and 750,000.

German losses in aircraft and mechanized divisions were equally heavy. It is estimated that half the number of tanks that they employed were lost, while it is definitely ascertained that over 2,000 Nazi aircraft were destroyed.

The latest German claim (very much scaled down from their original boast of 1,200,000 prisoners) is of having taken 330,000 officers and men. This figure, qualified observers point out, added to the number of Allied forces evacuated from northern France and Belgium, would still exceed the total Allied forces involved in the operations. This also omits any reference to admittedly heavy Allied losses in dead and wounded which may have reached 30,000. Evacuations to England alone have by now exceeded 350,000. It is now definitely established that nine-tenths of the B.E.F. returned.

Inferences Drawn

The inferences to be drawn as a result of the battle of Flanders and the subsequent evacuation by the Allies, it is pointed out, were as follows:—

1. While the German mechanized forces are very powerful, the German infantry of today is much inferior to that of 1914.
2. The German claim to control the sea by air power is proved to be a fantastic lie. In spite of continuous attacks against vessels of all description which took part in the evacuation of Allied troops from Dunkirk, the German Air Force scored hits in only five per cent. of the total number of trips made by these vessels.
3. Germran air superiority was found to be numerical only, the Royal Air Force completely dominating the enemy air arm.
4. The British Expeditionary Force was not disintegrated. The morale and discipline of the troops remained unbroken.
5. While much material was lost by the Allies, the industrial power of the Empire and France is undiminished whereas the German stocks are considerably depleted.

To sum up, the Germans won the battle at tremendous cost in men and material without accomplishing what they set out to do—the annihilation of the northern Allied forces.

Adviser Attacks Policy Followed by Japan

Mr. Kuhara Resigns Post; Wants Stronger Action

Tokyo, June 7.

After resigning from the important post of adviser to the Cabinet, Mr. Fusanosuke Kuhara today launched a bitter attack against the "weakened" policies of the Premier, Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai.

Mr. Kuhara's resignation followed Admiral Yonai's rejection of his suggestion that the entire Cabinet resign.

The attack was the first open frontal criticism from the elements favouring a Fascistic single Parliamentary party for Japan.

Mr. Kuhara issued a statement in which he urged that Japan declare war on China and oust European troops from Chinese treaty ports and then impose a rigid blockade east to Singapore

He also urged the abandonment of "subservient" policies vis-à-vis Britain and the United States.

Mr. Kuhara, who was arrested in connection with the sanguinary mutiny of February 26, 1936, and later released because of insufficient evidence, also emphasized the need of Japan making large additions in its armaments, particularly planes, submarines and tanks.

Mr. Kuhara, known as the "Al Smith" of Japan was a prominent munitions maker and industrialist and commanded great political power prior to his alleged implication in the abortive February Incident.

For years he has consistently argued in favour of "One Party for One State."—United Press

Fine Work By Allied Air Forces

Areas Behind German Lines Bombed; French Shoot Down 40 Planes

London, June 7.

Throughout Wednesday and yesterday, strong forces of heavy and medium bombers of the Royal Air Force have been continually engaged in harassing the second phase of the German offensive against the Allied armies in France, with a series of attacks on mechanized troop concentrations and lines of communication behind the German battlefront, according to an announcement made by the Air Ministry.

Hits were registered on two convoys, a military train was derailed, and at strategic points, roads and railways were temporarily made unusable. In addition, oil refineries and marshalling yards in the Ruhr and near Hamburg were bombed.

Medium bombers, after successfully attacking between Amiens and Arras, were intercepted by enemy fighters which engaged two, and which were seen to be in flames.

At Cambrai, direct hits were registered on railway marshalling yards, tearing up tracks for hundreds of yards. The enemy-occupied aerodrome at Cambrai was bombed, and at Le Cateau, the enemy was subjected to a heavy bombardment where a train was wrecked. St. Quentin and Douai were also visited.

The principal oil depots attacked were at Hamburg, where works were set on fire, and at the end of the bombing, there was a chain of fire over the whole target area. The Kiel Canal, and Heligoland were also visited.—Reuter.

French Do Fine Work

Paris, June 7.

"When the battle of the Somme began on Wednesday, our attacking squadrons were in action in the small hours of the day and did not cease to harass marching columns, tanks and motorized forces of the enemy," states the latest French Air Ministry communique.

"With admirable courage, energy and keenness, our crews continued their operations throughout yesterday morning and afternoon, in close co-operation with land forces. Far-reaching effects of these actions were observed at numerous points.

"Many direct hits were registered. The destruction of convoys, and considerable damage caused by the explosion of our bombs, was observed.

"Our fighters made a great number of flights, accompanying bombing expeditions, and protecting supply operations. Many combats occurred, the results of which have not yet been ascertained. It is confirmed, however, that on Wednesday, more than 40 enemy 'planes were brought down.

"Over 150 tons of explosives have been dropped on the battle front, and in the enemy's rear. Observation and reconnaissance patrols were active in exploring back areas, reporting troop movements, and objectives on the battlefield," the communique concludes.—Reuter.

Vital Bridges Hit

London, June 7.

During yesterday's bombing by the Royal Air Force of German forces seeking to penetrate Allied defence in the region of Abbeville, British machines in the morning dropped many tons of heavy bombs and large numbers of smaller bombs on armoured columns.

In the afternoon, a strong force of medium bombers maintained a 45-minute incessant bombardment, scoring direct hits on roads, bridges and lines of communication. Important bridges over the Somme eastuary were the objective of another sortie later in the day, and on one vital bridge three direct hits were made with heavy bombs.—Reuter.

British Air Production Overhauling Losses

German Claims Exaggerated, Irresponsible

London, June 7.

The exaggerated German claims of losses inflicted on the British air force appear to have raised the question in many countries as to whether the British air force can for long continue the strain of the present air operations, according to authoritative circles.

The fact is that not only are the German claims wholly irresponsible and exaggerated, but production is more than overhauling the British losses, and will do so increasingly in the future.—Reuter.

Canada to Assist

Ottawa, June 7.

The Minister of Munitions stated the Canadian motor industry is in a position to begin immediate replacement of vast quantities of supplies and mechanized transport lost by the British Expeditionary Force in Flanders, and conversations on the subject are now taking place with the British Government.

He estimated that Canadian factories could produce equipment like gun carriers, trucks and other vehicles at the rate of 60,000 yearly.—Reuter.

Polish Population Starving; Immediate Aid Said Needed to Save People

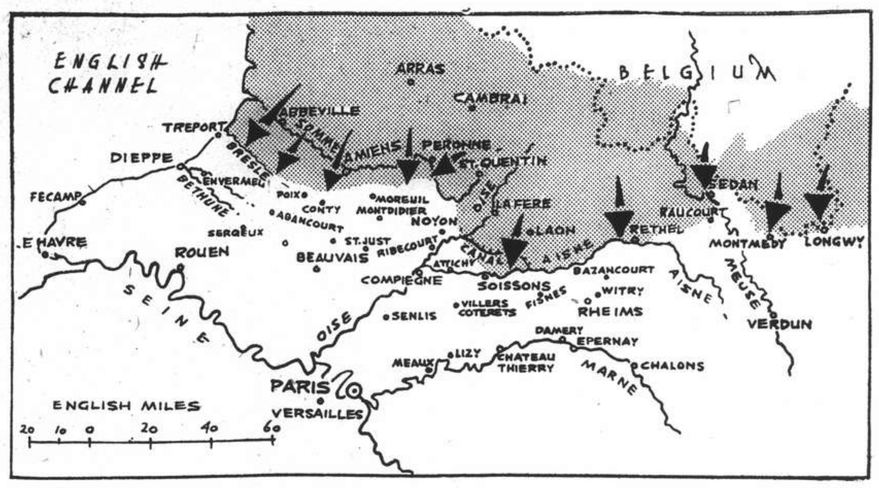
Appeal Urges U.S. Surplus Stocks of Grain Be Sent to Millions Who Have No Food

New York, June 6.

The starving populace of Poland needs between $30,000,000 and $40,000,000 worth of food immediately, declared Mr. Herbert Hoover, at a mass meeting of 3,000 Polish-Americans held in honour of General Josef Haller, minister without portfolio of the exiled Polish Government.

"Slowly the food supplies of Poland diminish. Russia has robbed the supplies from the great agricultural areas around the east of Poland. The great industrial centres must have a start from abroad or millions will perish," Mr. Hoover said. "Ten or fifteen million persons are in jeopardy of famine at this moment," he went on. "We are hoping that Congress will appropriate some of the surplus foodstuffs which will otherwise rot in this country. Surely it is characteristic of a great and generous people to send it to a starving people rather than sell it in the European market. He assured we will do all in our power to bring help in this desperate need."

General Haller thanked Mr. Hoover for what he was doing for Poland. In Poland, he said, millions of poor men, women and children blessed his name.—Reuter.



"Situation Pretty Good in West"

British official quarters are quite satisfied with the way the present battle is going. South of the Somme Allied troops are firmly established on the Bresle River. Enemy attacks near Amiens were repulsed. Between Aisne and Ailette the Germans are attacking violently. Over 400 tanks have been destroyed by the French.

Present Battle Is For World Independence, Says M. Reynaud

Allies Have Reasons For Hope; Confidence in French Arms Expressed in Broadcast

Paris, June 7.

EMBARKATION of 330,000 soldiers from Dunkirk taught Germany the significance of mastery over the seas, declared the Premier, M. Paul Reynaud, in a broadcast last night.

"Within the last fortnight," he said, "I twice addressed you and each time I had to announce bad news. On May 21 informed the Senate that the Germans had taken Amiens. On May 28 I announced that the King of the Belgians betrayed us and the road to Dunkirk was open.

"Today in an hour which remains grave I am going to give reasons for hope—not words but facts. Germany has launched herself against us with her usual brutality by three separate thrusts.

"The first was when German propaganda announced that Allied armies which had gone to fight in Belgium had been encircled and would be annihilated. They were to be cut off from the sea and deprived of munitions and provisions and the world would witness a capitulation unprecedented in history. In the face of the impossibility of repairing this vast loss of fighters the morale of the Allies would be crushed.

Ring Never Closed

"This ring of steel, however, was never closed, 333,000 Allied soldiers were embarked at Dunkirk, teaching Germany the significance of mastery over the seas. Far from breaking our moral our troops and our country revealed themselves equal to the strain and worthy of our ancestors. The heroism of the battle of Flanders and of the rear-guard fight before Dunkirk have already gone down in history. During these days the valour of our military leaders has affirmed itself in magnificent fashion.

"This morning I received Admiral Abrial, defender of Dunkirk. In these men, who have won the admiration of the entire world, France believes. In these men she sees revived the eternal glory of the generals of the revolution and of the admirals of French kings. All the glory has been revived by thousands of obscure sacrifices which will probably never come to light, made by soldiers of our northern armies and sailors. After the surprises of the first combat our soldiers of 1940 have proved themselves equal to those of 1914 who never doubted victory even when the Germans were winning.

Blow Against Paris

"The second thrust was aimed at breaking the morale of Paris. Last Monday Hitler organized a spectacular raid on the capital. He employ hundreds of bombers and fighter 'planes. What were the alleged objectives of importance? All the world knows and he knows, as has been proved by precise figures, that women, children, old people were hit. Did all this disturb Paris? No, not for a second.

"Some minutes after the bombing raid, I saw on the spot the proud faces of our working men and women of Paris, who do not know how to tremble. We know now that what appeared to be a colossal raid, was nothing to the soul of Paris.

"This raid, as you know, did not remain without reply. On the night of Tuesday, successive waves of British bombers attacked factories of the Ruhr. Bombs were dropped on Dortmund, Frankfurt, Dusseldorf, Cologne and Essen. The fire of petrol stores set alight was visible from a distance of 150 kilometres.

"French bombers flew over Mannheim, Ludwigshafen, Munich, and the colossal factory of Badische Aniline was set on fire. Flames were visible from the French frontier. Each raid on a French town will be answered in the same manner in future. That much about the air raid.

Battle for France

"The third German enterprise, and the most decisive one, is the one we witnessed today. It is the battle for France; it is an attack in the grand style, preceded by a proclamation by Hitler to his troops. All the means of which we know have been put into operation. Aircraft and armoured divisions are once more attempting an infiltration, and a breakthrough of our front. The battle has already commenced, and I shall tell you nothing but what General Weyand has told: 'I am satisfied with the manner in which the battle has begun, and the manner in which my orders for resistance at any price are being executed.'

"On the ground on which we are forced to improvize resistance, our army is showing that it is adapting itself to new conditions of warfare. Since the beginning of the battle, hundreds of enemy tanks have been destroyed, and Allied aviation is supporting the action of our troops. All the world watches breathlessly the development of this battle, because the battle of June 1940 will decide its fate, as Hitler has said, for centuries.

"What is the risk which must be realized in Europe and outside Europe? Today all the world knows. It is the regime of oppression, wherein men who are not Germans play but the rôle of slaves. The new world announced by Hitler

Raid Warnings in Great Britain

Three Workmen Injured in Lincolnshire; Widespread Area Covered

London, June 7.

Three workmen were injured when bombs fell near a Lincolnshire town in the course of Nazi air activity during the night.

Nazi planes crossing the coast caused warnings to be sounded at places as far apart as a town in Durham and another on the south coast.

Suffolk, Yorkshire, Lincolnshire, Nottinghamshire and Sussex all had warnings. In one case, a red blob was seen in the sky diving towards the sea like a plane falling in flames.

Incendiary Bombs

In a communique issued at 7 a.m. today on the raids, the Air Ministry and the Ministry of Home Security states:

"Enemy aircraft last night crossed our south coast at many points and carried out a series of raids over a widespread area. Air-raid warnings elapsed before 'raiders passed' signals were given.

"Anti-aircraft defences were in action, and fighter aircraft were sent up to intercept the raiders. A number of high explosive and incendiary bombs was dropped.

"High explosive bombs fell on a Lincholnshire town and caused two minor casualties, but did little damage as far as is known hitherto. Many other bombs fell in open country, and some may have been directed at aerodromes."—Reuter.

Britons to be Prepared

Following last night's widespread Nazi air raids on southern and eastern England, Sir John Anderson, Secretary for Home Affairs and National Security, today inaugurated a nationwide campaign to prepare Britain's civilian population for further air raids and also to enroll thousands of additional Air Raid Precautions workers.

Sir John's campaign is aimed at reducing the shock of Nazi air raids on the civilian population and also to instruct the ordinary "man in the street" in deportment in case of air attacks.

In an official communique today, the Home Affairs Ministry said there were "tens of thousands of persons who have not yet taken their places in civil defence services. The time has come when they must.

"The bombing has begun. It may well be that the testing time for our civil defence is upon us. It is the object of this department that the country should reduce Hitler's dividend when his bombers come."—United Press.

British Troops in Somme Action

Highland Regiments Offer Fierce Resistance; All in Excellent Spirits

London, June 7.

"Highland regiments of a famous division were fiercely resisting the German attack on the Somme front yesterday," says a military commentator, "Eye-witness," writing from advanced battle headquarters on the Somme front.

"These troops are part of the British forces on the front which are holding section of the line near Abbeville. The Germans launched a strong push on Wednesday night from the Somme, where they already hold several bridgeheads, and isolated several of our positions. But the British troops, although surrounded, fought on tenaciously, living up magnificently to the division's reputation for toughness and courage.

"The German penetrations have made it necessary to withdraw our line at certain places to positions several miles south of the Somme, but every inch of the ground is being contested.

"Men of every profession and trade have been among those who met the German onslaught fearlessly and calmly, and many militamen who were called to the colours only a year ago have shown themselves as good soldiers as any.

Still Laughing

"Our men are in excellent spirits, despite heavy artillery and machine-gun fire, and low-flying bombing. They just shake themselves afterwards, and laugh.

"The fighting yesterday was in blazing sunshine and almost tropical heat. Many of the men fought in their shirt-sleeves.

"Probably the German attack in this sector would have been fiercer, but for the terrific artillery bombardment of several bridges on Wednesday, in which more than 30,000 shells were fired.

"So far," concludes the commentator, "it is not clear whether or not this attack on the lower Somme is merely a side-show to distract attention from a much heavier assault further east, which the French armies are so gallantly resisting. Whatever should develop, however, every preparation has been made to meet the situation."—Reuter.

Italy's Indecision Still Puzzling Whole World

Postponement of "Decisive" Speech Causes Surprise; May Act as Intermediary

London, June 7.

SOME surprise was caused in diplomatic circles here by the postponement of the 'decisive' speech which Signor Mussolini was to have delivered in Rome yesterday evening.

The postponement is believed to be due to two reasons. If the German offensive in France succeeds Italy would then offer her services as an interested intermediary between France and the Reich and propose the conclusion of a peace which would grant Italy many concessions; If the German offensive fails, Italy would wait for further developments which might give Rome some indication as to the best course to follow. Diplomatic circles here are of the opinion that the role being played by the United States is still not very clear. President Roosevelt appears to have succeeded up till now in at least delaying if not calming Italy.—Havas.

French Pessimistic

Paris, June 7.

French political quarters, although paying a great deal of attention to the repeated postponement of Italy's decision to enter the European war, have not yet gained the impression that Premier Benito Mussolini has reconsidered or abandoned the intention of joining the war on Germany's side.

They pointed out that warlike preparations seem to be growing in intensity in Italy. The tone of the Italian press has not changed and new anti-Allied demonstrations have been reported daily. Nearly all British citizens, including most of the personnel of the British Embassy, have left Rome, they said.

Nevertheless, the opinion was expressed here that President Roosevelt's efforts to persuade Italy to maintain her position of non-belligerence may have had "a certain effect" on the Italian attitude, even if only in the sense of delaying the decision by a few days.

As to the ultimate success of numerous interventions in favour of non-belligerence, the Rome correspondent of "Le Temps" was frankly pessimistic. The correspondent asserted that the Italian Government had disregarded repeated French proposals to open negotiations.

"During the last few weeks," the correspondent reported, there have been several attempts to encourage the Fascist Government to act in favour of peace. Apart from Pope Pius VII and the United States Government's representative, Mr. Sumner Welles (the Under Secretary of State), President Roosevelt himself has made soundings to this end. All these efforts have been in vain. The same was the case in regard to the Allied appeals to engage in negotiations with Italy."—United Press.

Anti-Allied Outbursts

Rome, June 7.

A violent anti-British demonstration was staged today as the Italian press warned the United States to steer clear of European affairs.

Hundreds of soldiers guarded the British Consulate and Embassy this morning while 7,000 Italians participated in two demonstrations stressing Italian approval of the Maltese Nationalist movement. The demonstrations were marked by shouts of "Malta must be freed—Malta is Italian."

The Italian press continued attacking Allied colonial policy yesterday and warned the United States she would invite European intervention in the Western Hemisphere if she continued to "meddle" in Europe. Premier Benito Mussolini, meanwhile, continued to make preparations for the defence of the country in case of war.

Il Duce discussed Italo-German crop prospects with the Reich Minister of Agriculture, Herr Walter Darre. It was reliably reported they decided to pool stocks of cereals possessed by Germany and Italy.

The Rome Radio, meanwhile, charged that the Governor of Malta was terrorizing the population there on the pretext of the danger of fifth column activity. The press, simultaneously, accused the French of persecuting Italians in the French colonies.

Sig. Virginio Gayda, generally considered to express the views of Il Duce, said, "By indiscreetly taking part in European affairs, the United States automatically provides the European Powers with the right of retaliation."

The "Popolo di Roma" predicted a war between continents if the British Government should move to

Women, Children, Struggling in Sea, Machine-Gunned by Reich Submarine

Few Survivors of Abukir Tell Harrowing Tales Upon Arrival in England; Bombed by Aircraft

London, June 7.

A terrible account of how a German submarine machine-gunned men, women and children struggling in the sea was told in London by one of the few survivors of the 6,895-ton steamer Abukir.

The vessel had taken a cargo of army stores to Ostend where it embarked more than 200 passengers including a large number of refugees, among them 40 to 50 women, some children and six priests, all fleeing from the terror of the German invasion.

The ship left Ostend in the night of May 27. Her sole armament was one Lewis gun, her top speed eight knots. Her decks and all other available accommodations were crowded to capacity.

For about 90 minutes after leaving port German aircraft bombed the Abukir incessantly but the ship was not hit. Then the bombing stopped. Those on board imagined the danger was gone.

At 1.15 a.m. on the 28th a torpedo track was clearly seen ahead of the ship and a few seconds later the track of a second torpedo was seen astern. The Abukir immediately zigzagged and hopes were aroused that she had eluded the enemy, but 20 minutes later a German submarine was seen on the surface off the ship's port bow.

The captain, in a last desperate attempt to save the ship and her human freight, swung round, tried to ram the submarine. But the Abukir's speed was too slow. The submarine fired two torpedoes. One missed, the second struck amidships. The ship sank in less than 60 seconds.

As passengers and crew struggled in the water the submarine swept the sea with a searchlight then fired a machine gun at the helpless victims.

The very few who managed to avoid the bullets clung to pieces of wreckage, were rescued six hours later by a British destroyer. Among the survivors were one French and one Belgian girl.—Reuter.

Radical Cabinet Changes Seen

"Old Guard" Seen Going as Result of Secret Meeting Of British Cabinet

London, June 6.

Radical changes in the British Cabinet are foreshadowed by the secret meeting today of the House of Commons, Parliamentary circles declare.

It is generally believed that the members of the "Old Guard" will disappear from the Government. Among those who will probably go are Mr. Neville Chamberlain, former Premier and now Lord President of the Council, Sir John Simon, Lord Chancellor; Sir John Anderson, Secretary for Home Affairs and National Defence; and Sir Kingsley Wood, Chancellor of the Exchequer. Important changes will also, in all probability, be effected in the Civil Service.

Now, at the most critical period in British history, it is imperative that all those who in one way or another were responsible for the unpreparedness of the nation at the beginning of the war must go, the same circles added.

At present the nation is displaying an intense will for action, and the previous cabinet changes have already made themselves felt in military, economical and moral spheres.

Political circles describe this change as "a revolutionary action" which may be completed within the next eight days by eliminating the "survivors" of the former administration.

This new spirit has been steadily gaining ground among Parliamentarians, notably among those serving in the British armed forces, and the majority of the supporters of the former government are now of this opinion.—Havas.

Tientsin Silver Issue To Be Settled Soon

Agreement May Be Signed By End of Next Week

Tokyo, June 7.

An agreement between Japan and Britain for the disposal of the Tientsin silver question is expected to be signed by the end of next week, it is reported in Japanese circles here.

If such an agreement is reached, the blockade of the foreign concessions in Tientsin, imposed by the Japanese military authorities nearly a year ago, will probably be lifted.

At least such was the opinion expressed by the Foreign Office spokesman, when questioned concerning the reports, here today. He said that he considered the blockade would be lifted "as a natural result" of any agreement.

The "Asahi Shimbun" reported this morning that in an interview between Sir Robert Craigie, British Ambassador to Japan, and Mr. Masayuki Tani, Japanese Vice-Minister of Foreign Affairs, the basis for an Anglo-Japanese understanding to settle the longstanding Tientsin silver issue was apparently reached.

The newspaper added that a formal exchange of memoranda on the subject between Britain and Japan, and France and Japan, would take place shortly.

Commenting on this report, the Foreign Office spokesman said that it was "broadly correct."—Reuter.

The British Embassy in Shanghai states that it has no information concerning these reports.

Chungking Refuses Comment

Chungking, June 7.

Both British and Chinese authorities here decline to make any statement on the report published in Tokyo today that the basis for an Anglo-Japanese understanding to settle the Tientsin silver issue was apparently clinched in an interview between Sir Robert Craigie, British Ambassador, and Mr. M. Tani, Vice-Minister for Foreign Affairs.

While no official comment is available, it is reliably learned that negotiations are of such a nature that there will be no tripartite agreement.

Discussions going on in Chungking between Chinese and British authorities, it is stated, are progressing smoothly. It is quite possible, it is added, that an understanding may be reached at an early date, but at present both Chinese and British authorities decline to comment on the subject.—Reuter.

King Leopold Denounced By Aunt

Albert of Belgium's Sister Cuts Off Nephew

Paris, June 7.

The aunt of King Leopold of the Belgians, the Duchess of Vendôme, sister of the late King Albert, yesterday publicly broke with the Belgian King over his unconditional surrender to Germany.

The Duchess, who lives in France, where she owns a villa at Cannes and a castle in the Alps, published a formal communique declaring, "The sister of Albert of Belgium, the Duchess of Vendôme, conserves the traditions of honour and sacrifice and denounces with indignation all those of her family who failed to follow the glorious example of the King-Knight."—United Press

Fighting Cabinet For France

Government Gets Greater Powers; Inner War Council Of Eight Formed

Paris, June 7.

The new French Government, which was introduced to President Albert Lebrun late yesterday, is definitely stamped as a "fighting Cabinet," French political quarters said last night.

The new Cabinet, it was said, is definitely pledged to continue the war against Germany to the finish with "no taste for compromise and with the highest moral in the ace of Germany's continued pressure against the new French line of defence."

At the head of this Cabinet de combat, the Premier, M. Paul Reynaud, stands out as the leading figure. Either directly, or through his various mouthpieces, he has taken into his hands the presidency of the council, the Ministry of National Defence, the Ministry of Treasury and the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

Through the French equivalent of a Washington "brain trust," M. Reynaud will rule France through the personalities of Gen. E. Degaulle, tank expert at the War Office, M. Paul Baudoin at the Foreign Office, and M. Y. Bouthillier, Treasury technician with the full rank of Minister of Finance at the Louvre.

Not a Dictatorship

Not since the rule of M. Georges Clemenceau has any Frenchman amassed such a tremendous degree of personal power in France, French political leaders said last night, however, that there were no indications that M. Reynaud was attempting to "ape Stalin or Hitler by setting himself up as an amateur dictator."

In principle, it was said, the French Government will continue to conform to all Parliamentary traditions, although for the time being M. Reynaud has not fixed a date for calling Parliament back.

During the absence of Parliament, however, there is very severe control over the Government through the permanent committees of the Chamber of Deputies and Senate which sit daily.

The Senate Foreign Affairs Committee, it is believed, had very much influence on M. Reynaud's decision to undertake his cabinet shake-up on a few hours' notice yesterday morning. It has been no secret that the chairman of the committee, Senator Henry Berenger, disagreed with the policies of M. Eduard Daladier, who lost the Ministry of Foreign Affairs in yesterday's shake-up.—United Press.

War Cabinet of Eight

Paris, June 6.

The new French "Inner" War Cabinet, announced today by the Premier comprises only eight instead of eleven members. Following is the list:

M. Paul Reynaud, Premier, Minister of National Defence and Minister of Foreign Affairs; Marshal Petain, Vice-Premier; M. Camille Chautemps, Vice-Premier; M. Louis Marin, Minister of State; M. Jean Ybarnegaray, Minister of State; M. Raoul Dautry, Armaments Minister; M. Georges Mandel, Home Minister; and M. Georges Monnet, Blockade Minister.—Havas.

Refuges Prepared in Vatican City

Vault of Historic Tower As Air Raid Shelter

Vatican City, June 7.

Apartments are being prepared at the Palace of Santa Marta for the French Ambassador and the British Minister in conformity with the Pope's decision to offer hospitality to representatives to the Holy See of nations with which Italy might eventually be at war.

All measures have been taken for a total blackout of Vatican City. A great vault of the fifteenth century tower of Pope Nicholas V near St. Peter's has been cleared of its contents so it can be used as an air raid shelter. An armoured room in the tower is arranged as a strong room for church treasure.—Reuter.

Enormous Number of Refugees in France

Paris, June 7.

The French Red Cross yesterday appealed to the International Red Cross for aid in behalf of more than 5,000,000 homeless war refugees now in France, in addition to the hundreds of Czech, Austrian, Spanish and German refugees who fled to France before the war. The French Red Cross estimate there are 2,000,000 Belgian, 70,000 Luxembourg and 50,000 Dutch refugees in France at the present time.—United Press.

Shanghai University Claims Settled

The Japanese authorities have paid in two instalments to the University of Shanghai a solatium of CN$1,060,000 for damage done to the properties of the university and to individuals of the staff, stated the Japanese Embassy spokesman at yesterday's press conference. The first payment was made in gold dollars on May 29 and the second yesterday, the rate of exchange having been fixed at that of April 19.

The recent negotiations were conducted between the Japanese naval liaison office here and representatives of the university and, in reply to a question, the spokesman said that neither the American nor Japanese Consulates-General took part.

The university was established and is supported, it is recalled, by the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society and the Foreign Mission Board the Southern Baptist Convention.

"Pretty Good" British Battle Comment

The French air force, however, took an active part in the fighting at the front, destroying a large number of enemy tanks. It is estimated that no less than 400 tanks were destroyed yesterday either by artillery units or planes. French planes also attacked military objectives in Germany, particularly along the banks of the Rhine, while R.A.F. squadrons bombed German concentrations in Belgium Holland, and western Germany.—Havas.

General Weygand Inspires Troops

Paris, June 7.

General Maxime Weygand, Allied supreme commander, in an inspiring order of the day, exhorted the armies opposing the German offensive to carry on with the tenacity which they displayed in fulfilling his instructions during the first two days of the battle.

The order of the day issued to the troops when the present offensive opened was broadcast by the Paris wireless. It reads as follows:

"The order is to hold or go on without thought of withdrawal. Officers, non-commissioned officers, let thought of your Fatherland fill you with unshakeable resolution where you are.

The examples of our glorious past show that courage and determination always gain the day. Hang on to the soil of France. Look only forward; the High Command has made its preparations in order to support you from the rear. The fate of our Fatherland, our future and that of our sons depend on your steadfastness."—Reuter.

French Hold Firm and Destroy Many Tanks

Earlier Communique Shows French Moral High

Paris, June 6.

The German effort to pierce through to the heart of France, using over 2,000 tanks, backed up by strongly-organized man-power, may be compared to that at the beginning of the Meuse battle, military circles here declare.

Now, however, despite the tremendous pressure being exerted by the Germans, the French defence has held firm, with slight German gains being registered only on the extreme wings of the battle zone; along the lower Somme on the left wing and along the Ailette on the right, where extremely important infantry effectives permitted a German advance of about 10 kilometres.

All French positions, supported by anti-tank defences, are resisting strongly, and the German tanks destroyed already number many hundreds. Many of these tanks have been destroyed by low-flying aircraft, it was pointed out.

Masses of Tanks

The French General Staff communique confirmed that the German forces were throwing into the melee immense numbers of tanks, which the defending forces were literally "flooding with fire."

"The enemy is using new masses of tanks, sometimes 200 and 300 at the same time at various points of the battlefield," the communique stated, continuing: "Our aviation is constantly attacking armoured vehicles with guns and bombs, and claiming the honour to go back into battle.

"The number of tanks destroyed amounts to several hundreds. Before this unprecedented onrush of enemy masses some of our units were submerged or outflanked, particularly in the regions of the lower Somme and the right flank, where enemy units succeeded in reaching the heights bordering the right bank of the Aisne.

"At the end of the day the battle was still raging along a front extending from the sea to Chemin-des-Dames with the same violence which had characterized it since the beginning.

"The morale of the troops is excellent. Our aviation pursued the destruction of the Rhine railway system and factories in the Rhine region. Yesterday 30 German planes were certainly shot down by our fighters and anti-aircraft guns. Seven others were hit and probably destroyed," the General Staff communique concluded.—Havas.

East Indies to Supply Raw Materials

Economy Studied; Japan Not to Be Affected

London, June 7.

Delivery of raw materials to the Allies from the Netherlands Indies and use by the Allies of shipping are two important economic matters now receiving the attention of the Dutch Government, Reuter learns in authoritative Dutch circles in London.

Supplies of raw materials are to be made in such a way that there shall be no interference with exports to Japan and the United States. Economical use by the Allies of shipping also is considered and Netherlands shipping will give the utmost assistance to the Allies, but sufficient tonnage must be available for exports to Japan, the United States, Australia and South Africa. —Reuter.

Strikes and Lock-Outs Banned in England

London, June 7.

Strikes and lock-outs were prohibited in a law effective yesterday, it was announced here last night. Arbitration decisions will be final and binding in labour disputes. The new measures are part of the defence act and are designed to prevent any hitch in the prosecution of the war. —United Press.

Anglo-German Naval Battle Rumoured

London, June 7.

An Anglo-German naval battle off Gothenburg was reported to have started or Wednesday night, the Exchange Telegraph's Stockholm correspondent asserted today. He said that apparently the British were attacking a German convoy.—United Press.

Japan Examines U.S. Embargo

Envoy in Washington to Clear Up Points; Press Says Embargo Serious

Tokyo, June 7.

Japan has asked for further information regarding America's announced intention of placing an embargo on the exportation of machine tools and other goods which are needed in the United States for national defence purposes, Mr. Yakichiro Suma, spokesman for the Foreign Office, said today at his press conference.

Asked if Japan intends to protest against the American action, Mr. Suma said that his Government has requested Mr. Kensuke Horinouchi, Ambassador in Washington to clear up several ambiguous points in the announcement made by the Secretary of State, Mr. Cordell Hull, Mr. Suma said that details are still lacking here of some of the regulations in question as well as information concerning by what authority the embargo will be enforced.

"We may approach Washington on receipt of full information," Mr. Suma said. He added, however, that it was the understanding here that the embargo is to be imposed impartially on all countries "including the Chungking administration."—Domei.

"Incomparably More Serious"

Tokyo, June 6.

Extension of the United States moral embargo to machinery and machine tools is "incomparably more serious" than the January 26 abrogation of the 1911 American-Japanese treaty of commerce and navigation, the "Japan Times" declares.

Even the Gaimusho, the paper continues, believes extension of the embargo to be very serious. Hope is still entertained that the embargo will not be enforced against all countries, however, and that its effect will not be felt in Japan.

The "Japan Times" voices doubt that American importers of raw silk and other commodities will risk Japanese retaliation by stopping exports of machinery and tools to Japan.

Nevertheless, the "Japan Times" states, there is ample ground for concern that machinery will not be the only export item affected by the moral embargo. For, it points out, if the United States increases its assistance to Britain and France, scrap iron and oil may be included in the scope of the moral embargo.

Trade Bureau quarters are reported to fear that the normal commercial relations that fave existed de facto between Japan and the United States since abrogation of the 1911 treaty may now be ruptured.—Havas.

Britons Suffering War Damage to Be Aided

Government Assistance for Those with Low Incomes

London, June 7.

Sir Kingsley Wood, Chancellor of the Exchequer, announced in the House of Commons new war damage arrangements designed to give immediate help to those whose incomes are below certain limits and cannot readily replace damage.

Amounts will vary according to individual needs. Furniture advances will be made where total income of a household does not exceed £1,400 and the maximum advance will be £50 or the amount of the damage wherever it is less. Maximum clothing advances will be from £10 to £30 according to the number of dependants in a household.—Reuter.

Present Battle is for World Independence, Says M. Reynaud

in his proclamation may begin perhaps by trickery, but soon enough will follow orders, bullying, smacks in the faces of workers, and the moral and physical destruction of the elite. It would be the Middle Ages again, which would not be illuminated by the mercy of Christ.

Dream with be Smashed

"This dream of German hegemony will be smashed against French resistance, because the France which is standing up today against Hitler is not the France of the period between the two wars. It is another France, just as that Britain, which is fighting Hitler, is not the Britain of the last 20 years. We French of 1940 have but one thought—to save France. All members of the Government are animated by the common will to conquer.

"We will not lose our time when our country is in danger, on debates on responsibility. We will not weaken France by dividing her. Each one of us, each one of you, will bear responsibilities, each elector and each elected. Our first duty is to realize our faults in successive governments and in public spirit. Democracy has, for a long time, been lacking in foresight and audacity. The idea of the fatherland and of military valour have been too long neglected. Let this be brought home to all before closing this chapter of our history and working with the fierce energy of men whose eyes have been opened.

For Independence of All

"The propaganda of Goebbels is interested in fomenting discord. The French masses listen to it with contempt when it describes our country as plutocratic. France is calm and proud like her ally. For some time before the thunderclap of the new conflict, the Allies had, with all other countries, a vital interest in common —to prevent a German hegemony. Thus it is for the independence of all other countries that our soldiers are fighting on the Somme and Aisne.

"There is no nation with whom France cannot settle by peaceful means, divergent interests which appear to oppose each other. I have stated so publicly, and I repeat it. France desires the settlement of these problems and the reconstruction of a Europe in which prosperity and the independence of each nation is assured.

"Let spectators of the drama of the battle for France understand, and understand quickly, that the stake is immense. As for us, more than ever, we have confidence in our arms."—Reuter.

Italian Petrol Supplies

London, June 7.

When a questioner inquired in the House of Commons whether the Government had information about stocks of petroleum in Italy at the beginning of the war and at the end of April, Mr. Hugh Dalton, Minister of Economic Warfare, said the Government had very full information on this subject but it was not in the public interest to reveal it.

"I would prefer not to say anything," Mr. Dalton said in reply to a supplementary question whether he could assure the House that no further petrol beyond peace-time requirements is being allowed to pass contraband control.—Reuter.

On Thursday, the Russian Light Opera held a gala-performance of "Frasquita" in honour of one of their most able artistes, Miss Z. Bitner, who for many years delighted both the Russian and other foreign communities with her splendid acting. A more fitting light opera could not have been chosen for this gala evening, and the very fact that the honoured actress herself participated in the performance, doubled the enthusiasm of the audience. Before a full house, Z. Bitner as the beautiful Frasquita, vows to avenge herself for the insult that she suffered at the hands of Armand, G. Koudinoff. She plans to entrance him, and manages it very well, until she finds out that Armand has a fiancée. In the scene when Frasquita tries to forget Armand in wine and song with another admirer, Don Diego, N. Tarasoff, Z. Bitner shows that her many years on the stage have certainly not been in vain, as with versatility and grace, she dances, sings and flirts in a truly charming way. Her leading man, Mr. G. Koudinoff is his usual self, improving his voice with each performance. Endowed with good looks as well as with acting and singing ability, this young man will go far on the local stage, and should prove a great asset to the Russian Light Opera next season. The inimitable V. Valin, as Armand's uncle, kept the house in stitches with his never-ending witticisms. V. Valin, though always with the Russian Light Opera, is nevertheless a great help to the Local A.D.C. as he has, during the past few months, directed some of their most successful plays. Other characters in the play worth mentioning are T. Nevskaya, who has a charming voice and A. Slobodskoy, who never fails to please the audience with his singing. The opera was very successfully produced and it is to be hoped that the next winter season will bring more productions by the same company.—E.H.

Compulsory Military Training in U.S.?

New York, June 7.

Hitler Said "Already at War" with U.S.

Fifth Column in States Now, Says Mr. Pepper

Washington, June 7.

Speaking in the Senate yesterday, Senator Claude Pepper said that Hitler was "already at war" with the United States.

Replying to a Senator who asked what would be the position of the United States if Hitler declared war on them for supplying war materials to the Allies, Mr. Pepper said that it would not change the situation very much.

"Hitler is already at war with us. He has his fifth column in the United States. That is intervention," declared the Senator.—Reuter.

THE party, headed by Mr. Chen Li-fu, Minister of Education, on an inspection tour to study administrative conditions in the Northwest provinces of Shensi, Kansu, Tsinghai and Ninghsia, left Chungking for Sian on June 6, according to a report from Chungking to the "Chinese American Daily News."

DUTCH reports state that the German motor-ship "Robert Ley" of 27,288 tons, has been sunk in the Skagerak. This, of course, is the famous "Strength Through Joy" ship which took Nazi workers and officials on health cruises. Launched last year she was a vessel used for propaganda purposes and the Nazis were very proud of her indeed. Two other small German ships have also been reported off the Dutch coast.

PREPARATIONS have been completed for the formal inauguration of the new Ministry of Forestry and Agriculture in Chungking on July 1, when all its subordinate offices will begin to function, states a Chungking message to the "Chinese American Daily News." General Chen Chi-tang, who has been appointed Minister of Forestry and Agriculture, has been busy attending to the organisation of the new ministry, the report adds.

ONE of the survivors of the British destroyer Afridi—sunk by bombs when going to the rescue of a bombed French destroyer during the withdrawal from Norway—told how, when the French destroyer was hit by a bomb the sea became covered with oil and Frenchmen jumped from the doomed ship to swim to the Afridi. The Germans dropped incendiary bombs and set the oil alight. The whole sea seemed alight and in flames and many of the survivors were unable to reach the British warship. In addition the Germans machine-gunned those who were still alive in the water.

THE Mayflower, a graceful 320-feet yacht, built at Clydebank, Scotland, and 42-years old, is to be scrapped. She has a romantic history and crossed the Atlantic in 1896, when she was bought for £300,000 by a millionaire, and two years later the U.S. Navy bought her for £107,000. She cruised as a naval auxiliary in foreign waters, and carried, among other famous people, King Edward VII and the Kaiser. Mayflower made history after the Russo-Japanese War, for the representatives of the belligerent Powers met in her state-room for the signing of the Peace Treaty. In 1902 she became the Presidential yacht.

LADY Hillingdon, who will in all probability become Chairman of the Central Council of the Conservative Party is the second of five remarkable sisters, the daughters of the late Viscount Chelsea. One is Lady Stanley, another the Duchess of Marlborough, the third Lady de Trafford, and the fourth married the heir to a Scottish baronetcy. Lady Hillingdon's interest in politics dates from her marriage in 1916, when her husband, then Mr. A. R. Mills, was M.P. for Uxbridge. Since then she has become one of the best known figures in the party, and has filled nearly every position open to a woman. Although she has five children, she has kept alive her sporting tastes. She is fond of hunting, fishing, and golf, and also takes a keen interest in the Girl Guide movement.

MR. Frank Pick, the retiring second-in-command of the London Transport system, was chiefly responsible for the famous series of Underground posters and for the improvement in the design of suburban stations. In addition, as chairman of the Council for Art and Industry, his influence has been felt on the hoardings, in the position and design of new factories, in the layout of advertisements, and in the preparation of British exhibits at foreign exhibitions. The Institute of British Architects recognized his services some years ago by making him an honorary member, and among his other distinctions is an Honorary Badge of Merit conferred on him by Stalin for his assistance in the construction of the Moscow Underground. His retirement has probably been hastened by the hard work he put into the plans for evacuating London, for which he was primarily responsible. He is a Lincolnshire man in the early sixties, tall, good-looking, and self-effacing, who was trained as a solicitor, and who has been connected with London transport for 34 years.

German Atrocities in France Described Vividly in Letter

Women, Children and Old Men Machine-gunned; Hope For Revenge and Faith Deep in People's Hearts

HOW the Germans have been machine-gunning refugees on the roads of France is described in a letter received by a French lady residing in Shanghai from her friend in Paris. This letter, written in Paris on May 21, is not a professional report, romanticizing the facts to make them more striking, it is the sincere reaction of a woman with those sights still fresh in her mind.

The plight of eight orphans, whose mother was killed on the road, is vividly described in this letter by the writer who spent an afternoon at one of the large reception centres of Paris, where refugees arrived day and night, tired, with swollen and bleeding feet, carrying what little they could save, but without a trace of panic or complaints, for they are sure that the crimes of the enemy will be punished and that a German victory is a moral impossibility.

Figures are given approximately in English measures for the benefit of the English-speaking public. The letter says:—

"The civilian refugees fleeing from the barbaric invaders and their bombardments are a heart-rending sight. Yesterday, I spent the afternoon at one of the large reception centres of Paris, where refugees arrive day and night in a ceaseless stream to be sent out to the provinces. There are hundreds of them coming in buses and trucks with their scanty belongings. They have saved very little for they had to walk so many miles.

"The majority of them have swollen and bleeding feet, for they have walked up to ninety miles. Most of them are bareheaded, with a blanket slung over one shoulder, and they carry trunks, handbags, small bundles wrapped in newspapers.

"There are many, many children, and sometimes a bird or a dog. They are all worn out. The boy scouts take their bundles, the nurses look after the children, and they are all being installed on benches. There are also some beds for the children and their mothers. The scouts and guides take care of the newcomers, distributing coffee with milk, hot soup, sandwiches, and nursing-bottles for the babies. Voluntary teams are working day and night at the soup-kitchens to prepare and distribute abundant meals. Those who are slightly wounded and have refused to be sent to hospitals away from their families are being taken care of at first aid centres.

"There is a boy wounded in the neck and face by the fragments of a shell; there is a young mother with a deep wound in the hand, but smiling bravely, for her little baby daughter sleeping in her arms has come safely through the machine-gunning. And there are so many weary feet to be taken care of....and so many old men who seem to have spent their last bit of strength on the roads.

Clothing Distributed

"Clothing, too, is being distributed. Especially the mothers, fleeing with their children, have been able to take few things with them; they were heavily laden, and the journey was such an unutterably hard one. The mothers and children gathered in a special section of the centre make a deeply moving picture. One cannot help crying when listening to what Mme. Viollet, who is taking care of the mothers and children, is telling me, pointing out one or another group.

"Here are eight orphans, whose mother was killed on the road. The elder sister is nursing the youngest baby who is just eight months old. This woman, stretched out exhausted, had to flee three days after her baby was born, and to walk 25 kilometres. A touching detail: the midwife who taking care of her refused to leave her and walked all the way with her. A mother is crying, for her little girl had been machine-gunned on the road and she has been forced to abandon the little corpse.

"Another one has been forced to leave behind her old grandmother in order to save her children. Now she is wondering anxiously what has become of the old woman. One family came with six children. Two of them were dead, and their parents carried them in a suitcase. They had been machine-gunned, too, and the parents had not the heart to leave them lying on the road. A mother, travelling alone with seven children, arrived with two only, having lost the others on the way. They had to run so often into the fields and hide that they lost sight of each other. Here is a doctor watching a sleeping child with a temperature of 104.

"The poor little thing was so afraid, says his mother who is holding two other children, aged six and eighteen months.

Incalculable Suffering

"Such are the facts collected in several hours. The amount of suffering which has passed through here within the last few days is incalculable.

"The refugees are not only fed and cared for at the centre, but they are comforted, too. I watched a nurse who is softly speaking to an old man. He is crying because he has been separated from his wife on the road.

"Tell me, will you find my wife?

"She reassures him, telling him that the registration of families is now being carried out in perfect order. She offers him some soup, and as he refuses, she quietly insists that he must take something to keep up his strength. A moment later, I pass by this old man once more, and I see that he has fallen asleep. . . . .

"Two subjects come up incessantly in all conversations with refugees: The first is deep indignation against the massacre of civilians, of which they themselves have been the object. The stream of refugees on the road was machine-gunned when there was not the least possibility of error as to who they were. They were machine-gunned with a persistent and dogged ferocity.

"I speak to a comparatively well-dressed lady who is lying down as she cannot walk any more. Her son beside her is greedily devouring a sandwich, but on her other side there is her daughter, a lovely girl of sixteen, who is completely stunned. She does not reply to questions and refuses to eat anything. The terror had been more than she can stand. Planes were zooming incessantly above their heads, sometimes diving low. They had to lie down and to wait, and then continue their way through the corpses covering the road. One will never be able to give an adequate description of the calvary of these innocent people, due to the immeasurable barbarity of the enemy.

"But while the refugees to whom we are talking speak of their sufferings and relate with emotion the crimes which they have witnessed, there is no trace of panic, no complaints. They are all as sure as we are that those crimes will be punished, that the victory of the enemy is a moral impossibility. Hope for revenge and faith are deeply rooted in their hearts in spite of everything."

The letter concludes:

"This can hardly make pleasant reading for you, but you can be sure that these sighs have only strengthened our determination. I have not heard a single word of complaint. France is ready for her task and will play her part come what may."

Sikh Alleges Assault Outside Temple

Claims Struck on Head With Heavy Stick

Alleging that he had been struck on the head with a stick and had his hair pulled, Jagal Singh, watchman brought a complaint against Hazara Singh, Hira Singh and Adjit Singh in H. M. Police Court before the Registrar, Mr. C. H. Haines, yesterday. The plaintiff was represented by Mr. E. T. Maitland, who said that the case was a very simple one, and that the best method of procedure was to put the plaintiff into the witness box immediately.

Jagal Singh stated that he was a watchman, and identified the defendants in court. On May 26 he went to a Sikh temple in Tiendong Road at about 3 p.m. and there took part in a religious ceremony. While in the building, one of the accused, Hira Singh, abused his mother and sister, whereupon the secretary of the Gurdwara told him to be quiet as he seemed to be drunk. Hira Singh then accused plaintiff of being a police informer, but did nothing more for the time being.

Beard Pulled

When Jagal Singh went outside the building he found Hira Singh waiting for him with Hazara Singh, who started to hit him on the head with a stick. Plaintiff then called for help, and Ajit Singh, Hazara Singh's brother, came up and pulled his hair and beard. He again called for help, and a number of Sikhs came up and separated them. After the alleged assault he went to Hongkew Police Station, and from there was sent to the General Hospital. The case was adjourned until Wednesday, June 12.

Anti-cholera Passes in Hongkew to be Shown

Placards in English, stating that no one will be allowed into Hongkew on and after June 11, unless in possession of anti-cholera certificates, and urging the public to be inoculated, were hung on the northern sides of the Garden, Szechuen and Chapoo Road Bridges by the Japanese Landing Party yesterday morning.

Thousands of Chinese have already been stopped and injected by the Japanese in the special sheds erected by them for this purpose, while foreigners have also been asked to produce proofs of having been inoculated. A great number of foreigners are daily undergoing the process of being inoculated by the Japanese, who charge nothing for doing it.

Chinese Students Must Do Gardening

Chungking Order Teaches Manual Labour

To emphasize labour and production, the Ministry of Education at Chungking has enforced a set of new regulations requiring students to be their own gardeners and to do other work in schools besides obtaining an education. The regulations, which consist of nine articles, have just been published in Shanghai and it is expected that Chinese schools here will carry out the order.

The main idea of the order is to require students to set aside at least three hours weekly for doing manual work along the lines of agricultural production. They are required to grow all kinds of vegetables and to raise chickens and pigs. It is stated in one of the regulations that if it is convenient, students can feed fish in artificial ponds if there are none near their schools.

They are also to be taught the methods of making sauce and other seasonings. To grow apples and to make bean curd are two other official suggestions.

Child Welfare Assocn. Appeal for Funds

Four Rescue Centres in Shanghai Maintained

From today until June 28, the National Child Welfare Association of China will launch a financial campaign to secure funds for its work in Shanghai.

The campaign will be conducted under the leadership of Mrs. Milton J. Helmick, second vice-president and acting chairman, and Messrs. Ling Kong-hou, S. U. Zau and Andrew V. Wu, Members of the standing committee of the association. The goal is $30,000.

In Shanghai, the Association is maintaining four institutions with about 700 needy children and babies, (a) a welfare home for homeless orphans, (b) a camp for refugee children, (c) a nursery for refugee babies and (d) a benevolent home for stranded street children. It costs $15 each month or $180 each year to take care of one child, including food, clothing and education.

As the financial source is largely from membership fees and contributions, the association is now appealing to the generous-hearted people of Shanghai for sympathetic support.

Donations may be sent to the Shanghai Office of the Association, Room 208, Chung Wai Bank Building, 147 Avenue Edward VII. Tel. 82273.

Junior S.S.P.C.A. Holds Meeting Today

Gathering in Cathedral Girls School Planned

The Junior Section of the S.S.P.C.A. is holding its first meeting today at 3 p.m. in the grounds of the Cathedral Girls' School, Avenue Haig, kindly lent for the occasion. All junior members have been invited to attend.

There will be races under the direction of Miss Grace Darroch and Mr. R. L. Heath, and there will be on view various animals, birds, etc., which have been rescued and found good homes by the Society at various times, including it is hoped the veteran horse "Old Soldier."

At the conclusion of the meeting Sir Allan Mossop, President of the Society, will give a short talk to the children on the meaning of their pledge, and Lady Mossop has kindly consented to present the prizes for the races at 5.45 p.m.

Armed Robber Sentenced To Death

Convicted of armed robbery and murder, Chang Yao-yung was sentenced to death yesterday by the First Special District Court in connection with the $4,000 armed robbery and shooting which took place on May 5 in Tientsin Road. A pistol and several rounds of ammunition seized from the sentenced man were confiscated.

Chang was the robber who waylaid a cotton shop apprentice who had just withdrawn $4,000 from a bank in Ningpo Road and who succeeded in snatching the money parcel from him. The apprentice raised an alarm and the watchman Wang Su-sen, employed by a bank gave chase resulting in his being killed by Chang.

Chang ran to Tientsin Road and tried to escape through hiding in a house where he was eventually arrested later by a large party of police.

Decrees Absolute Granted In H.M. Court

Two decrees absolute were granted by Sir Allan Mossop in H. M. Supreme Court yesterday. They were to Mrs. D. M. Gray against Mr. C. J. A. Gray, and to Mrs. J. M. Moller against Mr. E. B. Moller. Mrs. Gray was represented by Mr. K. E. Newman, and had costs awarded to her. The respondent, however, stated counsel, is in Hongkong, and therefore they cannot be obtained from him. Mrs. Moller was represented by Mr. P. Watkin Williams.

SHANGHAI

By
Ellen Thorbecke

A delightfully-illustrated book that embraces Shanghai proper in almost every form. It commences with a concise history of Shanghai and proceeds through 83 pages of illustrations, amusingly clever sketches in a riot of colour, by Schiff, photographs in sepia and text dealing with trade, imports, exports, population, hotels, newspapers, exchange shops, traffic, temples, Chinese food, places of interest, beggars, funerals, public health, etc., ending with the Cycle of the Twelve Terrestrial Branches and Chinese Zodiac.

This is a book that will afford not only interest to the tourist, but will prove a veritable mine of information. It has to be seen to be desired.

Japan Hastens Recognition Of Wang Government

Prime Minister Reviews Policy in China, Towards U.S., The European War, and the N.E.I.

Tokyo, June 7.

THAT the mission of General Nobuyuki Abe, Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary to the new Nanking regime, lies in two directions, one directed by the Premier, Admiral Yonai, as President of the China Affairs Board, and the other by Mr. Arita, Japanese Minister for Foreign Affairs; and that there is a body of opinion in Japan which asserts there is urgent need for Japan to effect a guarantee occupation of the Netherlands East Indies in the event of destruction of the status quo there, or at least to reserve a voice in the disposition of that question, were among several interesting disclosures made by the Japanese Premier in an elucidation of the Government's policies to Japanese journalists.

Admiral Yonai felt that the entry of the United States into the European War was "quite likely" in view of prevailing American sentiment, adding that fact would considerably district the concern felt in America regarding events in Asia. But, in any case, he said, Japan has nothing to fear from the American navy, because Japan's naval power is such that it feels no pressure from the presence of the American fleet in the Pacific.

The Premier's statement is translated in part as follows:

The China Incident

"Measures for disposing of the 'China Incident' are proceeding according to the previously fixed programme. There is a firm conviction on my part that the disposal of the Incident will progress along the lines of the basic principles which were considered by the central figures of the new national government of China and the representatives of the Japanese Administration last December 30.

"The instructions to General Nobuyuki Abe, Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary to the new Chinese government, which were decided at the meeting of the China Affairs Board on May 31, will go forward in due time.

"I am told that there are persons spreading false charges that Ambassador Abe is idle. Ambassador Abe's mission lies in two directions, one directed by me as president of the China Affairs Board, and the other by the Foreign Minister. Pending receipt of final instructions, he is supposed to be busy sounding out the Chinese viewpoint and examining matters connected with the performance of his functions. It is regrettable that there should be allegations against the Ambassador because matters do not appear to be progressing rapidly.

"I am not in a position to divulge the nature of the instructions which have been approved for the Ambassador. It may be arranged for part of them to be made public. The China Affairs Board is putting into legal form the basic items for the commencement of the Sino-Japanese negotiations. I trust that the present instructions to Ambassador Abe will make it possible for the agreement with the Wang régime to make satisfactory progress.

No Negotiations with Chungking

"There is absolutely no foundation for reports which are finding credence in certain quarters that negotiations will be opened directly with Chungking. It is in the nature of things that operations directed toward the disruption of the Chungking Government should be continued while maintaining close touch with the Wang régime, because efforts to bring about the downfall of the Chungking régime from every possible direction are sure to result in strengthening the new Chinese government.

"I know that manœuvres by third Powers with regard to the Chungking Government are being bruited about. As far as I know, there is nothing new about third Power activity in connection with Chungking. I personally believe in bringing the China incident to as speedy a settlement as possible.

"I am led to understand that Italy will lead the third Powers in extending formal recognition to the new régime in China. I do not know anything about the possible attitude of other third countries toward the new Chinese government.

"As a matter of principle, the Yangtze River will be reopened to general shipping at the earliest opportunity. The matter has not yet reached a stage that permits me to commit myself on the exact time of such reopening.

"It is the policy of the Japanese Government to recognize the new régime as speedily as possible. The Government holds the view that recognition will come following the signature of a basic Sino-Japanese agreement.

Non-involvement in Europe

"The policy of Japan's non-involvement in the European conflict remains unchanged. The Japanese Government is not without plans for coping with any contingency which might arise with the further development of the military situation in Europe to indicate that the end of the conflict is near.

"In the background of this non-involvement policy is the consideration that it will be to Japan's advantage to watch the situation for the present. I have not yet gone so far as to consider abandonment of the non-involvement policy, depending on the development of the European situation. But the Japanese Government has a mind to cope with any conceivable contingency.

"As for the outcome of the conflict, there is a belief that it may end much sooner than generally supposed. Another school of thought doubts whether Britain and France will accept defeat. There is much speculation over what Germany would do to Western Europe if it won the present struggle.

"There is no change in the policy of this country toward the Netherlands Indies, which was enunciated not long ago by the Foreign Minister. There is one body of opinion which asserts that there is an urgent need for Japan to effect a guarantee occupation of those islands in the event of the destruction of the status quo there, or at least to reserve a voice in the disposition of the question.

N.E.I. Status Quo

"The Foreign Minister's recent statement regarding the islands prompts the thought that Japan has reserved the right to speak on the Indies question. As far as Japan is concerned, the maintenance of the status quo is desired.

"There is the matter of forging closer economic ties with the Netherlands Indies. Improvement in trade relations with the islands would seem to be one way of bringing about closer co-operation with them.

"It is not clear at the moment whether the United States will enter the war on the side of the Allies. There is every indication that it is itching to join the struggle. America's participation in the European war would alter the extent of that country's concern about the western Pacific. Confronted with the necessity for action, the United States, in all probability, would enter the war without regard for Japan.

"Of late American newspaper opinion has been opposed to picking a quarrel with Japan. Thus there is nothing remarkable about the growth of opinion in America against spending so much money on warships. The American fleet seems to be assembled now in the Pacific. It may be that America thinks this brings pressure to bear on Japan, but Japanese naval power is such that it feels no pressure from the presence of the American fleet in the Pacific.

"There is nothing to fear in the naval ratio between Japan and America.

Better Relations Envisaged

"There are moves afoot to end the present bad relations between Japan and America. Their nature cannot be disclosed here. There is no suggestion that these moves are taking definite shape. There is no thought of sending a special envoy to the United States.

"A speedy solution must be found for questions separating Japan and the Soviet Union. Something may be said for the view that some political move should be made in the interest of better relations, in addition to diplomatic efforts for the settlement of individual issues. This is a view that ought to be given practical consideration when the time is ripe.

"It seems that the Soviets are concerned more about Europe than the Far East at the moment.

"The authorities of the Agriculture and Forestry Ministry have confidence in their ability to solve the rice question and I have full faith in them. The need of the moment is to stabilize the public mind. This could be done by ensuring that there will be a large enough supply of goods to fill the minimum requirements of the people in wartime.

"There is a question of what factors should be taken into consideration in determining official prices. There are various shades of opinion on how to go about fixing prices. I think the best approach is to agree on a basis for prices in consonance with actual conditions.

"The Government is taking the attitude of an onlooker to the movement for the establishment of a new national political party, and the backers of that movement are not consulting the Government."—Reuter.

Japanese Raider Said Shot Down

126 Bombers Said to Have Attacked Chungking

Chungking, June 7.

One Japanese bomber was shot down yesterday in an aerial engagement above Suining, north-west of Chungking, a Chinese communique states.

It is asserted that 126 Japanese bombers participated in yesterday's raid on Szechuen.

Chinese fighters intercepted the raiders above Suining, where in the ensuing air battle one Japanese bomber is claimed to have been shot down on the southern outskirts of Suining. All the seven occupants are said to have been killed.—Reuter.

Japanese Pushing Towards Shasi

Chungking, June 7.

After crossing the Han river in the vicinity of Shayang, Japanese forces are at present pushing westward towards Shasi, on the north bank of the Yangtze river below Ichang. Chinese field despatches state that heavy fighting is at present proceeding in the area west of Shayang.—Reuter.

Mr. T. V. Soong Going To Chungking

Hongkong, June 7.

Mr. T. V. Soong, Chinese financial expert, who has been in the Crown Colony for some time, left here yesterday morning for Chungking by aeroplane.

Well-informed sources here declared that Mr. Soong's present trip to General Chiang Kai-shek's wartime capital is to participate in an important conference which will decide on Chungking's future diplomatic policy. Mr. Soong also was expected to attend the seventh plenary session of the Kuomintang.—Domei.

Egyptian Legion Takes Positions

Cairo, June 7.

The Egyptian Arab Legion, Egypt's first Bedouin cavalry army, which is distributed along the western desert oasis, took up strategic positions yesterday.

The Legion, which is armed with rifles, daggers, and grenades and officered by Bedouins, was ordered to wage guerilla warfare if necessary harrying enemy lines of communication by night and remaining invisible by day.—Reuter.

U.S. Attitude to Orient Unchanged

No New Trade Treaty with Japan Likely; N.E.I. Status Closely Watched

Washington, June 7.

Despite endless rumours to the contrary, no change has been made in the United States' policy towards the Far East, nor does any appear contemplated, Reuter learns from well-informed circles here.

The policy remains as it was when the Japanese trade treaty was denounced. The attitude of officials is still that Japanese action in China caused the treaty to be abrogated, and nothing in subsequent Japanese actions justifies any change in the policy here.

In recent press conferences, Mr. Cordell Hull, the Secretary of State, was often questioned whether negotiations or conversations are taking place with a view to arranging a new treaty.

No Change Likely

He invariably replied that there has been no change in the situation, nor does any seem likely.

All evidence arriving here points to increasing, rather than decreasing Japanese difficulties in China, and increasingly serious economic difficulties in Japan itself, thus lessening the chances of Japan "cutting up rough" in the Netherlands East Indies, or elsewhere.

In addition, the presence of large Soviet forces, including many 'planes, in eastern Siberia are considered to be a brake on Japanese imperialist ambitions.

Recently, there has been a move in both Congressional and Administration circles for an even stiffer attitude towards Japan's persistent trampling on American interests in China.

Furthermore, while the clause in the Defence Bill, now before Congress, giving the President powers to curtail or prohibit the export of any materials and munitions required for American defence, appears primarily to be concerned with the dangers from Europe, there is reason to believe it is chiefly aimed at Japan.

In other words, the Administration has taken advantage of the recent panic over American defences to slip through Congress a clause which, if openly addressed to the Far Eastern situation, might have caused some nervousness among isolationists.

Machine Tools Embargo

The clause is believed to have been drafted by the War Department and State Department with special reference to Japan, and the first action thereunder has been the announcement of an embargo on the export of machine tools upon which the Japanese arms industry is completely dependent, since German supplies have been cut off.

The Department of State stands absolutely firm as regards the Dutch East Indies, and the recent concern over American defences will assist this firmness. The country is genuinely worried over its defences, and officialdom, Congress and the press regard the safe-guarding of rubber, and tin supplies from Malaya and the Netherlands East Indies as a vital part of American foreign policy.

It is easy to find here political observers who believe that America will take immediate action, should Japan be as ill-advised as to make serious moves towards the East Indies.—Reuter.

Robbers Manage to Get Away

Five men, all of whom were believed to have been armed with pistols, forced their way into a Chinese house at No. 1087 Ferry Road, at 5.45 a.m. yesterday and managed to escape with $1,070. No alarm was raised and no shots fired. Detectives from Pootoo Road police station are now investigating the case.

Japanese 40 km. from Ichang and Shasi

The military spokesman at yesterday's press conference stated that the Japanese army in its westward drive from the Han River had reached positions approximately 40 km. from Ichang and Shasi. On being questioned, he said that if it was strategic policy for them to occupy the former port, they would do so, but their main objectives, other than to hold points such as Hankow and Canton, was to destroy men and material.

Japanese Position On Foreign Areas

No Intention to Take Over Shanghai Districts Unless Radical Changes Occur

At yesterday's press conference, the Japanese Embassy spokesman said some people in Shanghai believed that the Japanese authorities intended to take over the French Concession and the International Settlement in the event of Italy's entry into the European war. He added that the Japanese do not contemplate any such action merely by reason of Italian participation in the war, barring some radical change in the situation.

This assertion followed his statement that rumour had it that the French Concession authorities had requested the American authorities to take over patrol duties in the Concession, in the event of Italy's entry into the European war. "The Japanese authorities," he went on to say, "since they are responsible for the maintenance of peace and order in the whole area surrounding Shanghai, cannot but feel a deep concern should there be any truth in the rumour."

Mr. Y. Miura, Japanese Consul-General, therefore, continued the spokesman, called yesterday on the M. Auge, French Consul-General, and Mr. R. P. Butrick, Acting U.S. Consul-General, and asked whether any foundation to these rumours existed. Both replied that there was "absolutely no foundation." The French official further assured him that as far as the French Concession was concerned, there could be no such change in its administration in future.

German Press Parties Discontinued

Park Hotel Meetings No Longer Being Held

At yesterday's press conference the representative of a German news agency asked whether, in view of the fact that the municipal authorities had intervened in the German press conferences which had been held in the the Park Hotel—now discontinued—why it was that the same authorities had not acted similarly at the time the Japanese press conferences (1937-38) were being held daily in the Metropole Hotel.

The Embassy spokesman referred him to the competent authority.

It was subsequently alleged by German correspondents that the management of the Park Hotel had been informed by Council authorities that municipal bye-laws prohibited the use of hotel premises for political meetings. Hence the management asked them to refrain from obtaining quarters for this purpose.

Tientsin Belgian Bank Not Suspended

Peiping, June 7.

The Belgian Embassy states that Chinese reports, to the effect that the Sino-Belgian Bank has suspended business in Tientsin, are false.

The Bank is operating normally.—Reuter.

Presentation to Police Officer

S.M.P. Officer Who Is Leaving for Australia

Sergeant F. W. Thatcher, whose resignation from the Shanghai Municipal Police becomes effective next Friday, was the recipient yesterday afternoon of a beautiful teaset, suitably engraved, presented to him by Mr. R. Conduit, District Detective Officer, "A" Division, on behalf of members of the S.M.P., at Louza police station.

In addressing the large gathering of Mr. Thatcher's friends who attended the presentation, Mr. Conduit said that the retiring police officer was leaving after having been with the S.M.P. for more than 10 years during which time he had made many friends among members of the police. He wished him the best of luck in Australia where Mr. Thatcher intends to join the Army.

In reply, Mr. Thatcher thanked his collegues very much for the beautiful present and said that he would do his utmost to join up in Australia the moment he got there. He said that he felt sorry to have to leave his many friends in Shanghai, expressing the hope that he would return here in years to come and wishing all his friends the best success in their endeavours.

Two Men Held for Alleged Assault

Jacob Bibefeld, a Russian, and Eugene Abkovich, an unrecognized Pole, were brought before the First Special District Court yesterday on a a writ of detention on the suspicion that they assaulted an Italian lady Mrs. A. Consiglio, in the Bee Ba Bo Cabaret in Yu Yuen Road where the accused are employed. They were arrested on Thursday morning after the Italian lady, it was alleged, had been forcibly detained in the cabaret for many hours.

The police were informed by the complainant who is receiving medical attention that her bracelet had been stolen during the dispute. It was brought to light in court that the dispute developed when the lady refused to pay her bill, alleging that she was overcharged. The accused alleged in court that the lady ordered many drinks and that when the bill was presented she did not want to pay. The hearing was postponed to enable the police to investigate the alleged theft of the gold bracelet.

Japanese Spokesman on High Vegetable Costs

Much has been heard recently of the high prices of vegetables in Shanghai and it was said that the Japanese control of vegetable markets was responsible, observed the Japanese Embassy spokesman yesterday. It was true, he went on to say, that supported by the Japanese, the Special Municipality of Shanghai had established three vegetable markets with the view of eliminating the middlemen, who were responsible for the hardship on the farmers who had to take low prices for their product and also for the high prices the consumers had to pay.

This former situation was very complex, he added, and the object of the establishment of the markets was to simplify the system, to eliminate the parasitic activity of these agents.

Wheelock & Co., Ltd. Final Dividend

The board of Directors of Messrs Wheelock & Co., Ltd. have informed the Shanghai Stock Exchange that it is their intention to recommend to shareholders, on the occasion of the next annual general meeting of the company, that a final dividend of $5.00 (making $11.00 for the year) be paid on the old shares in respect of the year ending 31, March, 1940.

This information is given as early as possible in view of the fact that both old and new shares are quoted on the stock exchange, but they are unable to say when the books will be closed nor to give the date of the annual meeting. It is probable, however, that it will take place much earlier in the year than was the case in 1939.

Bank of France Returns

Paris, June 6.

Gold reserves totalling 84,616,000,000 francs of a gold content of 27.5 milligrammes were shown in the returns issued today by the Bank of France for the week ended May 29, indicating an increase of 1,000,000 francs.

The total note circulation was given as 170,858,000,000 francs, an increase of 4,157,000,000 francs, compared with last week.—Reuter.

U.S. Car Loadings

New York, June 6.

Car loadings in the United States for the week ended June 1, totalled 639,000 cars, according to the weekly report of the Association of American Railroads, which was issued today. This indicates a decrease of 48,000 cars from the previous week, but an increase of 71,000 cars compared with the corresponding period a year ago.

Loadings for the corresponding period of the previous year totalled 568,000 cars, while those for the week ended May 25 amounted to 687,000 cars.—Reuter.

New York Stocks

Thursday's Closing Quotations

New York, June 6.

Stock prices on Wall Street today finished firmer in a quiet session, with gains ranging from fractions to 2 points mostly predominating. The market was stimulated by more encouraging war news, and additionally aided by the continuance of good domestic business reports.

Nervous liquidation was less apparent on receipt of news that the French were holding their lines, but operators were still hestitant to extend their commitments, resulting in a small turnover.

The turnover amounted to 430,000 shares.—Reuter.

Dow-Jones Summary

By Courtesy of Swan, Culbertson & Fritz

The Allied resistance strengthened the entire market, with steels motors, aircrafts and some chemicals leading. Optimistic war developments offset domestic fears of higher taxes, a decline in building operations and a new low for Stock Exchange membership since 1915. Favourable items included a new high in Moody's business index since January, a high retail demand for automobiles, an advance in sterling and reports of a French order for 200,000 tons of shell-steel. However, the volume was small.

Stocks:—Prices are beginning to respond somewhat to favourable developments. Packard was heavily bought on reports that the company is to receive large American orders for war equipment. Mack Trucks and Studebaker were also reported likely to receive orders from the American Army.

Cotton:—The apparent minimum risk on distants at around 8 cents is attractinn favourable attention and moderate buying.

Wheat:—There is increasing agitation against the maintenance of the minimum limits, which are deterrent to trade and hedging against the new crop movement. Apprehension of the accumulation of unexpected selling orders at the July minimum, which might entail enforced taking of delivery, suggests the transfer of July to September or December by these desiring to maintain a long position.

Corn:—The market displays a variable tone but rules comparatively steady.

Rubber:—Reports of the abolishment of free sterling and of labour trouble in Singapore caused a late upturn. The claims of several large companies that it is possible to produce important quantities of synthetic rubber are attracting attention. One company reports the production of 500 to 1,000 tons weekly at a cost one-third above the cost of the natural product, and claims that the cost will work progression lower.

Hides:—There was a rally near the close on the first evidence of public buying interest for some time.

Cocoa:—Any serious threat to West African shipping could conceivably cause a run-up on hedge covering. There is little incentive otherwise.

Sugar No. 4:—The market has a steadier tone on higher sterling and a renewed enquiry for actuals.

On still further diminished volume of trading, easier conditions prevailed on Wall Street during the current period under review. While domestic business news was particularly favourable, there was no aggressive demand for stocks in evidence mainly because of disturbing war developments. On Wednesday, the German offensive and British admission of heavy losses of supplies in Flanders unsettled the market and on increased turnover, prices dropped from one to three points. Washington estimates of the need for higher taxes for defense purposes was an additional unsettling factor. More hopeful reports from the war area on Thursday offset domestic fears of higher taxes, the decline in building operations and a new low for Stock Exchange membership since 1915. Packard was heavily bought following a report that the company is to receive large American orders for war equipment.

As measured by the Dow-Jones 11 commodity index, commodity prices drifted downward. Wheat futures at Chicago moved lower under further liquidation on the renewal of heavy warfare and its contingent uncertainties which were accentuated by favourable weather conditions and the increasing crop movement. There is growing agitation against the maintenance of the minimum price limits because they are a deterrent to trade and hedging against the new crop movement. With country offerings again light and the adjustment of freight rates to meet Argentine competition on the Pacific Coast, corn futures ruled comparatively steady. Price changes in the cotton market were featureless. Trading in rubber was largely a dealer affair. It has been reported that a 20 per cent. increase in freight rates will become effective August 1. Towards the close of the week reports of the abolishment of free sterling together with labour troubles in Singapore, caused a late upturn. Not much change occurred in hide prices. Packers appeared more willing sellers while the demand for leather continued poor.

The magazine "Iron Age" currently reports that heavier Allied steel purchases are likely and that these will more than offset smaller exports to neutrals. The same publication sees an orderly expansion of domestic business and mills being jammed with alloy steel orders. Retail automobile sales during the month of May were 21 per cent. over the corresponding month of 1939. The machine tool industry has pledged co-operation and is supplying $200,000,000 worth of equipment for national defenses. April exports of industrial machinery were 140 per cent. over the same month last year. Standard Oil of New Jersey has announced the discovery of a new process for the manufacture of synthetic rubber.

Stock Outlook: So long as stock prices on Wall Street continue to disregard domestic business conditions and are virtually under the complete domination of war developments, a forecast of the future trend of prices is indeed hazardous. If the Allies are able to stop the current German offensive and the situation otherwise in Europe does not worsen, the market will probably improve.

Thursday's Closing Quotations

New York, June 6.

The cotton market early moderately declined on pressure of selling, liquidation and realizing. Later, prices rallied on trade buying and short covering. Finally, the market closed steady on the firmness of spots, with quotations ranging from 5 to 13 points up.

Prices in the rubber market today opened lower on foreign dealer selling, and liquidation, but later rallied on some speculative repurchases, moderate factory buying and short covering. At the close, quotations ranged from unchanged to 15 points up.

Wheat futures in Chicago moderately advanced on some mill buying, the firmness of stocks and shorts covering. At the final bell, gains of ⅛ to ⅜ cent were recorded.—Reuter.

Sterling Higher on New York Market

New York, June 7.

Sterling soared on the New York foreign exchange market yesterday when shorts stampeded to cover on reports that Britain was planning to force the free market out of existence by new, drastic regulations, which were expected to be announced in London today.

Britain would abolish the free market and bring all transactions within the official rates by means of severe restrictions, the reports said.

Ninety-day sterling was unquoted because of the unsettled condition of exchange. Sterling closed at U.S.$3.44. —United Press.

New York Market Stronger

New York, June 7.

Prices on the New York Stock Exchange closed stronger yesterday on reports of Allied resistance to the German blitzkrieg drive along the Somme River in France. Synthetic rubber continued to hold Wall Street's interest yesterday as the major domestic trend. Goodrich Rubber announced they would be producing several tons of their "Ameripol" synthetic rubber daily by fall, while Standard Oil of New Jersey said they plan to produce an even larger supply of "Butyl," their synthetic product.

Last year, however, the United States consumed 1,700 tons of synthetic rubber and 591,000 tons of natural rubber. Hence self-sufficiency in rubber is distant.

Steels led yesterday's rise, while motors, aircrafts, chemicals, farms and coppers joined. Domestic news was mixed. Car loadings and building operations were off, but the retail demand for autos was up. Volume was small during the session.—United Press.

Bank of England Returns

London, June 6.

The Bank of England statement for the week ended June 6, shows a decrease in public deposits of £22,510,000 to £13,610,000, while other deposits were higher by £23,010,000 to £168,400,000.

Government securities were listed at £161,730,000, showing an increase of £12,830,000 from the previous week. Other securities totalled £25,700,000, including £2,890,000 on discounts and advances and £22,810,000 on securities.

Notes and coins amounted to £12

SHIPPING NEWS

Vessels Arriving To-day

The following particulars in connection with vessels due to arrive today are based upon information available yesterday evening.

From MANILA: Pres. Cleveland, with mail, due 4 p.m. Buoys 12-13. Passengers expected at Customs Jetty at 4.45 p.m. Sailing for San Francisco and Los Angeles tomorrow at 11 p.m., the last tender leaving Customs Jetty at 9 p.m.

Due at Future Dates

All vessels are listed under their terminal port. The first date is that of the ship's departure from that port, and the second is the date she is due to arrive in Shanghai. Where a ship's name is duplicated it indicates the port of call last visited.

On account of the present international situation there is considerable interference with movements of ships, especially those from Europe. In cases where it is definitely known that the vessel is not running to schedule the Shanghai arrival date is omitted.

Envoys Urge Speed In Arms Delivery

American Ambassadors Phone Washington; Many Planes Already Sent

Washington, June 7.

American Ambassadors in London and Paris are "telephoning the Cabinet asking us to do everything to accelerate production of military essentials," one of the President's secretaries stated.

The secretary was replying to queries about reports that Mr. Joseph Kennedy and Mr. William Bullitt had sent requests to Washington that planes and military equipment to the Allies should be rushed.—Reuter.

2,300 Planes Already

New York, June 7.

According to a Washington message, Allied purchases of planes and aeroplane engines have amounted to £300,000,000. Aircraft already delivered amount to 2,300.—Reuter.

Reserve Planes Handed Over

Washington, June 7.

Fifty United States Naval Reserve bombers are being turned over to the Curtiss aircraft plant at Buffalo, New York, which is selling them immediately to Britain and France, reliable Congressional circles reported last night.

The United States Navy will receive replacements for these reserve bombers later, it was reported.

President Roosevelt was said to have approved of the procedure to rush all available American planes to the Allies. The President, it was said, expressed his approval after being assured that the procedure did not violate the American Neutrality Law.

Earlier reports today said that 24 naval reserve planes arrived at the Buffalo airport and lined up outside the Curtiss hanger. The planes were heavily guarded.

Rumours that other naval planes were expected to arrive at the Niagara frontier area, possibly for transport to Canada, circulated here today after public use of the Rochester airport was restricted.

Meanwhile, the Navy Department issued a statement regarding the return of the 50 bombers to the Curtiss plant saying that the planes will be replaced with more modern aircraft.

"In accordance with the agreement with Curtiss," the statement said, "50 planes from naval squadrons are being returned for replacement with planes of a superior type, equipped with lead proof tanks and pilot armour.

"These planes were temporarily in excess of requirements, because of the fact that many reserve aviators, normally attached to the reserve squadrons, have been ordered to Pensacola (Florida) as instructors on account of the large expansion of training there. It is expected that the remainder of the planes at reserve bases will be turned in in the same manner as replacements are received."

Forty more such planes will be delivered to Curtiss shortly, it was reported. It was noted that the Navy Department's statement did not mention the ultimate transfer of the bombers to the Allies.—United Press.

Swedish Press Scathing On Nazi Statements

Germans Know More About Allied Losses Than Own

London, June 7.

The Swedish newspaper, "Gote-Handels-och Sjofartstidning", says: "German reports always know so much about the enemy's losses, and so little about their own," according to a special commentary issued here.

"They denied all losses in the Kattegat. Their losses on the Western Front must mean losses in one sector only, and not total losses. Or were their Norwegian losses given in error?

"The Germans say that they destroyed 300 'planes in their raid on Paris. Attacking 'planes fly quickly, and it takes time to reckon 300 'planes, especially if they have been destroyed beforehand. The Germans say nothing about civilians killed in Germany by Allied air attacks, thus clearly indicating that bulls'-eyes were scored on military objectives.

"Dunkirk must have been a source of German disappointment and anger by the very small force which repulsed very much stronger forces, as long as it was found necessary.

"According to the Germans, ways now lie open to England and France. Whichever way they take, it is going to be drenched with blood," the paper concludes.—Reuter.

Belgian Government in Paris Recognized

Britain Regards It as Only Legal One

London, June 7.

Replying to a private notice question in the House of Commons the Prime Minister, Mr. Winston Churchill, said His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom recognized the Belgian Government at present established in France as the only legal Government of Belgium (cheers), and therefore entitled to exercise in the name of Belgium all due authority.

"I need hardly add it is the unswerving aim of His Majesty's Government, and I stress also of the French Government, to secure for Belgium effective restoration of her freedom and independence," Mr. Churchill said.—Reuter.

Wireless Apparatus Banned for Enemy Aliens

London, June 7.

The Home Secretary and Minister for Home Security, Sir John Anderson, has issued an order prohibiting enemy aliens from possessing any wireless apparatus, whether for transmitting or receiving.—Reuter.

House of Lords to Meet Secretly

London, June 7.

The House of Lords will hold a secret session next Wednesday, it is officially announced.—Reuter.

Ambassador Delays Return

Chungking, June 7.

The British Ambassador, Sir Archibald Kerr, who had provisionally booked to leave for Hongkong by air tomorrow, has postponed his departure.

Although no new definite date has been fixed, it is understood that the Ambassador will probably leave early next week. Lady Kerr left Chungking for Hongkong by air yesterday.—Reuter.

Gen. Mittelhauser Now Near East Commander

Appointed to Succeed Gen. Weygand

Beyrout, June 7.

General Eugene Mittelhauser, who was named to succeed General Maxime Weygand as Commander-in-Chief of the French forces in the Near East, assumed command here upon his return from Ankara yesterday. In Ankara General Mittelhauser established contact with the Turkish General Staff.

Ranking next to General Maurice Gamelin, the former Commander-in-Chief of the Allied Armies in France, on the army list, General Mittelhauser is 67 years of age. He is a former member of the Supreme War Council.

In 1919 General Mittelhauser went to Czechoslovakia as head of the French military mission and remained there for seven years. In 1926 he was called on to command the 2nd infantry division and in February, 1928, was made commander of the 16th army corps region.

Born in 1873, General Mittelhauser graduated from Saint Cyr military academy in 1894.—United Press.
